Lasting Impressions

LASTING IMPRESSIONS

Even before the school year began, before most students had even begun to pack for their move to Troy, students had some impressions as to what to expect when they reach their new home away from home.

For the 4000 students of Troy State University main campus those impressions are sometimes right or sometimes wrong. Whatever the case, the years at TSU main campus offers its students the opportunity to create many different and lasting impressions. The first impression of the campus is usually one of a unique friendliness among the students and instructors. A Unique characteristic of TSU is that most of the instructors know each of their students by their first name.

The friendships developed during the college years never end. Many TSU alumna visit the campus to keep in touch with old friends.

On any sunny afternoon you can find many Troy State students laying out getting those precious sun tans even if they have to study.

The simple beauty of cattails blowing in the wind is one of the beauties TSU students enjoy during the fall.

Lasting Impressions

The second most common impression of the TSU campus is one of EXCITEMENT. There is always something happening. The year starts with the opening of the football season, sorority rush, fraternity rush and of course a lot of welcome back parties. But that is just the first two weeks, the year also includes Miss TSU, Adamsfeast, and much much more.

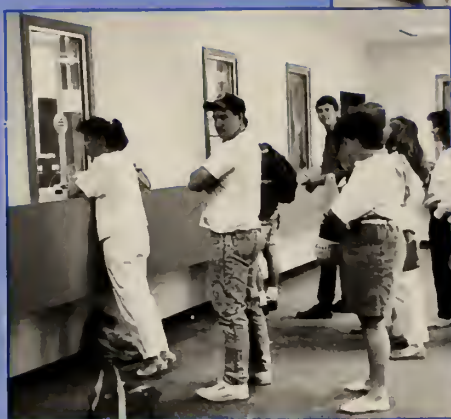

Top: Joann Stone performs to the music "Pretty Women" during the opening number of the 1989 Miss TSU pageant.

Ballons always add a special air of excitement to the homecoming activities.

Bottom: Reid Pichard finds time to discuss the evenings social plans.

Middle: Joni Shank gives a new meaning to a well decorated dorm room.

Lasting Impressions

The greatest impressions of college life are usually shared with the friends that you make while at TSU. The simple things in life like designing the decore for your dorm room, lunch at the Adams Center, a trip to Montgomery to do a little shopping and even standing in line at the business office is more fun if it is spent with a friend. Of course, your friends are also a big plus when it comes time to study for a test and you can't make heads or tails out of your notes or if you just need someone to explain what day it is to you.

Troy State University is made up of students with varying preferences, interest, goals and dreams. One of the most important lessons that is taught at TSU is that basic respect for others ideas and belief is the only way a civilized world can exist. This lessen is one that has allowed TSU to become a world wide University system with over 12000 students.

The goal of most students is to complete the necessary degree requirements and graduate. This is a goal that has many lasting impressions attached to it. The understanding of the people that students live with during their stay at TSU and the making of new friends is but one of the many exciting and lasting impressions.

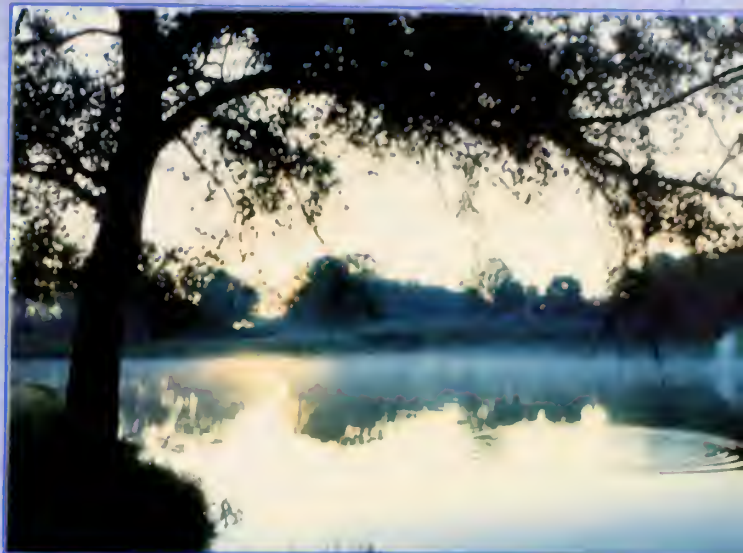

Middle: Lake Lagoon Park is where many students go to get away from everything. Jeff Steiner and Michelle Waddington share a special moment at the park.

The beauty of the sunrise over lagoon park is but one of the many beautiful aspects of the TSU grounds.

There are many lasting impressions that were made this year among these were the announced retirement of Chancellor Ralph Wyatt Adams, the opening of the new 2.5 million dollar administration building named in Chancellor Adams honor, the renaming of the Adams Center to the Dorothy Kelly Adams University Center, the changing of the decor of the Adam University Center, construction of a new theater and bowling alley, the construction of a new foreign student exchange house, the moving around of all the university offices and of course those individual impressions that each individual had of himself and the world around them. The most important impression to the senior class of 1989 was the graduation ceremony held in Sartain Hall. It was the last spring commencement of Chancellor Ralph Wyatt Adams.

Campus Life

There are many different ideas of what university life is like. Some believe it is a place to go party after high school and others believe it is a place of learning in order to prepare themselves for a successful future. In actuality it is a place for both, however, usually more studying than partying.

Juggling textbooks and work responsibilities as well as making time for a social life is just one of the many obstacles a college student must master.

The experiences of university life will form many fond lasting impressions.

The Front Porch

Troy's place for great times with good friends

Every college town has at least one local place that is known as the "hot spot" of the town. Troy is no exception.

"The Porch", as it is often referred to, is one of Troy's local "night clubs". It is here where everyone you want to see, and even those persons you don't care to see, can be found on most any given Thursday night.

The Porch is nothing more than an aged building that has been converted into a dimly lit, musky smelling tavern, but it is at this place many TSU students can recall many fond, and for some, not so fond, memories.

The Porch has a relaxed atmosphere where you can shoot a game of pool, dance, sit and enjoy a drink or two with a friend, listen to the music, or just socailize. Most TSU students do a combination of it all.

Even if there are other parties and activities scheduled for a Thursday night, the evening is still not complete without a stop over at The Porch. Garry Cannon said, "I like to stop by about 11:30 to see whose out and what's going on."

For many students, memories of The Front Porch will also bring back memories of great times with good friends.

CAREER DAY -

A Helping Hand

A first glance of the "real" world is what Career Day offers a future college graduate. Career Day affords the students of TSU a chance to see what future employers are looking for in employees. Career day is co-sponsored by the Placement Service office and each department at TSU. Potential employers, from all areas, set up booths and hand out brochures. Each employer has material on their business and discusses career possibilities with the students. Many students discover career opportunities they had not been aware of before career day.

Career day is open to the entire campus, not just graduating seniors. Juniors have the chance to meet people they can contact as graduation time approaches. Freshmen and sophomores are also encouraged to attend career day to help in the process of deciding "what to do when they grow up."

Representatives from state and federal branches of the government, private business, the military, public and private schools, and hospitals were available to the students this year. The list of potential employers included Ford Company, Gayfers, Federal Bureau of Investigations, United States Air Force, US General Accounting Office, Veterans Administration Medical Center and many other familiar corporate names.

Career Day was planned because many students were asking questions about what it takes to receive particular jobs. Through Career Day, the potential employers told students what degrees were in demand in today's working world.

Career Day lends a helping hand to those looking for a job in a world full of competition.

Honoring Dr. and Mrs. Adams

On May 1, 1989 the ceremonies for the dedication of the Ralph Wyatt Adams Administration Building and the Rededication of the Dorothy Kelly Adams University Center were held. The "Star Spangled Banner", played by The Sound of the South, signified the opening of the ceremony. Bill Buchannon, director of University Relations, welcomed Dr. and Mrs. Adams' family, current and former Troy State Board members, members of the legislature, Troy State officials, and students.

Wallace Malone delivered the dedicatory remarks. "Ralph's commitment to Troy State has been a labor of love and a 365 days a year job, and because it has been a labor of love, it has never been a burden," stated Wallace Malone as he delivered the dedicatory remarks. Governor Guy Hunt was unable to attend the dedication ceremony, due to prior engagements, but he sent a pre-recorded message commenting on how Alabama owes a great debt to Dr. and Mrs. Adams for his twenty five years of outstanding services and achievements.

The Adams Center received a name change at the ceremony. The Adams Center, previously named the Ralphs Wyatt Adams University Center, was rededicated to honor Troy State's first lady, Dorothy Kelley Adams. The Adams Center is considered the "living room" of Troy State. The Adams Center provides conference space, ballrooms, and places for students to socialize, shop and eat. The Administration Building is the heart of Troy State. The building is convenient and efficient because students and administrators can do almost all of their university business under one roof. The new Administration Buildings is 52,000 square feet and cost approximately three millions dollars.

During the Adams' Administration Troy State has grown from a teachers college to a liberal arts university to a international system. Dr. Adams has served as president of Troy since October 1, 1964. At the time Troy State was a small state supported institution with barely 2,000 students, now, the Troy State University System has 12,000 students attending classes on campuses in Alabama, Georgia, Florida, and Europe. The progress is mainly due to the efforts of Dr. Adams and his love for Troy State. It seems only fitting that the "heart" of Troy State should be named and dedicated to him. Mrs. Adams' love for the progress of the social well-being of the students is exemplified by the dedication of the "living center" of Troy State University.

With the growth of Troy State over the past 25 years, it seems only fitting that the heart of the campus and the living room of Troy State should be dedicated to two very special people who will never be forgotten. Thanks Dr. and Mrs. Adams!

Creating the Corporate Image

Fashion among the corporate world is much more than the standard navy blue suit. Vibrant colors are making their impact in the business world, whether its a bright colored blazer or an eye-catching accessory, color is being used more and more to add pizzazz to the fashions of the executive world.

For men, striped trousers, suspenders and brightly colored jackets are all the rage. As for women, bright colored suits with above the knee skirts and tailored pantsuits are popular looks in the executive office.

As many TSU students take their place in the corporate world, these fashions will become an essential part of their wardrobes.

Fashion is a statement made by an individual by the clothes that he or she chooses to wear. Our clothes can reveal whether we are feeling tough, businesslike, romantic, casual or a little of each. This year's fashion trends included skirts ranging in length from mini to long, turtleneck shirts for both men and women, the "career look"-blazers, jackets and wide- legged pants, long shorts, anything in black or plaid and of course, denim.

Fashion models are: Stephanie Russell, Michaela Lockridge, Steve Gorey, Hope Jackson and Guy Preston.

In the background, a woman in a bright pink shirt and white shorts is sitting on a lounge chair, holding a drink. Another person is partially visible on the left. The pool is surrounded by a concrete deck, and there are large trees and a house in the background.

Summer Sensations

The spring and summer seasons are the months for fun in the sun, dark tans and hot clothes. This season's bathing suits for women were brighter than ever with some of the popular looks being florescent colors, the "wet suit" and bikinis. For men, brightly colored shorts, mirrored sunglasses and dark tans were hot. Cool cotton shorts and shirts were also favorite clothing items during the hot days when feeling cool and looking great is a fashion must.

Building on Solid Foundations

Dirt mounds, scaffolding, concrete walls and construction workers became everyday sights on TSU's campus throughout the year. In the last year, TSU has initiated several construction and renovation endeavors. The expansion of the newly renamed Dorothy Kelly Adams University Center is one of the more significant of these endeavors.

Construction began in the Fall of 1988 and the completion goal date is set for Fall of 1989. The addition is being made to the south side of the building and is being extended out in the direction of where the tennis courts were previously located.

The new addition will include an eight lane bowling alley and a completely facilitated theater. The expanded area brings the total size of the Adams Center to 80,000 square feet.

The bowling alley will feature AMF equipment as well as video projectors for automatic scoring. With the completion of the bowling alley will come intramural bowling teams, physical education classes and community leagues.

The theater will feature a full drama stage with a seating capacity of 273. There will also be dressing rooms as well as a lobby. Most productions performed in the future by the Department of Speech and Drama will be performed in the new theater.

In addition, a full satellite system will be installed so that concerts, sporting events and other special activities can be broadcasted on a big screen television.

Through the various construction and renovation projects going on at TSU, particularly the expansion of the Adams Center. There is evidence of Troy State's growth. Upon completion of the renovations of the Adams Center, there will be a newer and more modern facility in which students, faculty and members of the Troy community can come and enjoy the benefits that come from a university that is built on solid foundations.

Dating in College can often lead to Going to the Chapel

There is an old joke about women who go off to college hoping to get an MRS degree. Yes, that's MRS as in married. Even though for some the thought of getting married seems as distant as the moon, it is quite common for a student to meet his or her future spouse while at college.

Perhaps this is because a college campus has such a wide variety of people on it. There is, more often than not, usually at least one person of the opposite sex with similar ideas, interests and goals as yourself, and if you're lucky, they may even be good looking. Also, because of the many activities going on around college campuses, the opportunities to meet new people are numerous. This was the case for Christina Coates and Chris Walker. They were brought together by the Sound of the South band. They both played the same instrument and from this common bond, the relationship grew. They plan to be married in June of 1990.

For others the road to the chapel isn't so smooth. Lori Featheringill said "I waited for him for almost two years until he quit dating other girls and realized I was his Mrs. Right." But perseverance paid off and she and her fiance' plan to marry in August of 1989.

Members of the Greek system have their own unique way of announcing the existence of a serious romance. For the women, a candlelight service is held in which a candle is passed around the circle of girls until it reaches the lucky girl who has become engaged or lavaliered, who then blows the candle out. A guy gives his fraternity lavalier to his girl to wear around her neck as a sign of their deep commitment. Many people think of this as a "pre-engagement" symbol.

Now all this may sound depressing to those of you who have yet to have a date twice in one month and who have decided that there are no more Mr or Mrs Rights left in the world, but take heart and be patient. Enjoy the fun and carefree aspects of dating and eventuality, when you least expect it, you'll find your Mr or Mrs Right and you'll be going to the chapel too.

Counseling and Placement Services

Tough Choices Made Easy

Having trouble deciding on a major? Need interview practice and pointers on writing an effective resume? The counseling and placement offices provide these and other useful services for all TSU students.

The counseling office provides such services as career counseling, personal counseling and academic advisement for undecided and conditionally admitted students.

A career exploration and planning class is also taught to help students learn how to better prepare themselves for their desired futures. Another special service that is available for student's use is the DISCOVER computer program. It is a program that allows you to learn about various fields and the qualifications they require. It also helps to narrow your focus on a particular major so that you will know what your specific area of interest is.

Shereel Bees, a counselor, said, "Many of the students who come in are in their freshman and sophomore years and need help selecting a major field of study; however, the upper classmen also come in wanting advisement on post-graduation plans and graduate schools."

The placement office often works in conjunction with the counseling office. The primary student services offered by the placement office are credential services, assistance in writing effective resumes and applications, setting up interviews with perspective employers and referral services. The placement office also sets up seasonal and summer employment for students.

The placement office also has directories, brochures and helpful literature on various companies. From these students can get a good idea about what a company does, potential salaries and job qualifications.

The services provided by the counseling and placement offices can be beneficial to any student whether you are undecided about everything or whether it's your last year and you need help preparing for your entrance into the "real world". Utilize these services, the benefits can last a lifetime.

the Arboretum

TSU Students Get Back To Nature

The Troy State University Arboretum is a relatively new feature at TSU, having been in existence for just a little over a year.

An arboretum is a botanical garden or a place devoted to the cultivation of trees and shrubs.

The Arboretum is located on Pell Avenue and is open from dawn to dusk. The site, containing 75 acres of swamp, stream bottom and old field was dedicated on May 11th, 1987. This was the result of foresight and long hours of hard work by two men: Chancellor Ralph W. Adams and Dr. Wayne Adams. As TSU and the City of Troy continued to grow and expand, it was felt that an area near the campus needed to be set aside as an outdoor laboratory and teaching facility not only for the University but for the community as a whole. This site represents in a small area a number of different habitats where students can view the plant association as well as a place to "get away from it all" and enjoy a quiet walk in the woods.

In March of 1988 the Dr. Henry Bridges Greenhouse was completed and opened to the public. An interesting and educational addition to the arboretum, this greenhouse contains a large collection of orchids donated by Dr. Bridges and others. Also two half-mile long self-guiding nature trails were added. Covering a number of different habitats, these trails point out some of the unique features of the arboretum. As a living laboratory, the arboretum is constantly changing. Whether the subtle changes of seasons or longer term successional changes, each visit offers something new to discover.

Alvin Diamond, director of the arboretum said, "The arboretum is used by the students and faculty of TSU as well as by many community groups, such as the Troy Garden Club and the Boy Scouts."

The arboretum is a place where one can get away from it all among the beauty of the lake and the trees. One can truly take the time to enjoy nature and all of the simple beauties it affords.

All This And

Working part-time while attending school has become a common place activity for TSU students.

While many students are able to qualify for one of the 300 workstudy or one of the 200 workshop jobs available on campus, many others are employed by local businesses.

Even though many students are encouraged to work while in school, a study of working students published in the 1987 "Journal of Human Resources" revealed that working more than 25 hours per week increases the probability of a student's grades to fall and ultimately increases the chance of his dropping out of school entirely.

However, students who work less than 25 hours per week on campus are more likely to not only be unaffected academically, but are also considered more likely to consider graduate school after graduation.

In addition, there is no evidence that working while in college increases future earnings, but there is much evidence that working students do not graduate on time.

Nonetheless, students who work see both positive and negative aspects of their situations.

"Working interferes with study time, but it also gives students great potential for better working relations after graduation," said Lisa Taylor, who works 15 hours each week in a video store.

"Working can keep you from attending functions on campus or studying, but it also puts you in a different atmosphere other than school and it teaches you how to handle your time," said Kim Wickline, a 25 hour per week employee at Wal-Mart.

"I would take more classes if I didn't work," said Mark Bodiford, who is employed by a local animal hospital. "However, because I work with the public, I feel that working is a good experience."

Although there are not 36 hours in a day, it seems that eventually things fall into line and time is made to do the things that are most desired. TSU students really do have time to do all this and homework too.

ROOMMATES:

The Good, The Bad, and The Ugly.

Most all of us have had at least one. They come in many sizes and shapes with many little idiosyncrasies. Some are super and others are super awful. They are roommates and they can be a dream come true or a living nightmare.

Remember your first one? Most say those are the worst. It seems freshmen always get the ones no one else wants.

You know the ones with oily hair, dirty fingernails and bad breath. Most of them have wierd habits like using your toothbrush or washing their hair at 3:00 a.m.

Your mom says becoming accustomed to sharing a room or even an apartment with another person is part of adjusting to your new college home. Whether your roommate decorates the walls with Ozzy Osborne posters or sets the kitchen on fire, it is all part of the fun.

Even so, everyone says college is a learning experience and learning about different people from different backgrounds can be a valuable experience as long as you don't have to experience it forever, right?

If your roommate snores, eats all your food and has an alarm clock that sounds like a fire engine, don't panic. It could be worse.

"My worst roommate experience was receiving a $400 phone bill which consisted of calls he had made," a junior management major said.

"I really thought my roommate was normal," said a freshman from Florida. "I soon found out he spent many hours watching reruns of Mr. Ed."

And you thought your roommate was bad? Maybe

Top: Stacey Coates, George Dothard and Adam Byrd enjoy spending time with neighboring roommates playing scruples. Roommates can relate to this game.

Top Right: Gina Brown and her roommate straighten their apartment after receiving a call that mom was on her way to visit.

cey Coates in the Rommate Game just to discover how much he knows about his roommate Garry Cannon.

The Roommate Game

The Adams Center Union Board sponsored the third annual "Roommate Game" (a take off from the Newlywed Game). This year the game was broken into two preliminary rounds and then the finals. Each preliminary consisted of four pairs of couples who had to answer questions such as: What soap opera does your roommate like to watch? or Who stays out the latest?

After some very stiff competition the final winners were Carla Hines and Condaice Milbrie. Each winner recieved twenty-five dollars and a plaque. In some cases it actually pays to know your roommate.

what you thought was an on-going nightmare was simply a tiny bad dream.

On the other hand, many students are fortunate enough to have great roommates.

A good roommate tells white lies to your parents when they want to know where you were at 2:00 a.m. yesterday morning.

A good roommate types your papers, puts up with your bad habits and lets you use her shampoo. What more could you ask for? "My roommate is my best friend and we have a super time," said a senior journalism major. "I have had my share of bad roommates, but this one is great."

"My roommates and I have had our share of ups and downs, but we have been together for three years," said a senior busienss major. "It was difficult at first, but now we know each other and we know how to respond to each others bad moods. It just takes time."

Even though everyone has a "bad" roommate story to tell, many students relate good experiences about their roommates.

Whether good or bad, your college roommates are people you surely will never forget.

Stewart Hall: To Eat Or Not To Eat

Does anyone really go there for the food?

Even after all the horrible comments made about the food, why does everyone keep going to Stewart Dining Hall?

Some reliable sources say it's not the food, but the social life and a little gossip.

"I definitely don't go to SAGA for the food," said Susan Owens, a junior from Old Texas.

Girls use eating in the cafeteria as an opportunity to locate guys they are interested in, said Owens.

"I once had a friend who rolled her hair and redid her make-up to impress a guy she knew would be there," Owens said. "Another friend spilled her food on herself when she was trying to scope out guys."

"Girls sit at the tables and scope out guys," said Christy King, a junior from Mobile.

Several guys I met at pledge swaps came up and talked to me in the cafeteria, said King.

"It's a easy place to be yourself and get to know a girl your interested in," said Mark Alessandrone, senior from York Pennsavia. "I would sometimes accidentally on purpose pick up a girl's keys just so I could return them to her later that night.

Sometimes it worked. Sometimes it didn't."

"You really have to be careful not to drop your tray, because guys will stand up and clap," said King.

"People eat at the cafeteria because of the social life rather than the cost or quality of the food," said Doug Russell, a junior from Elizabethtown, North Carolina. "I really enjoy seeing people in SAGA. I met several girls there and ended up going out with several of them."

"SAGA has changed alot since I have been at Troy State," said Garry Cannon, a senior from Andalusia, Alabama. "They (SAGA) have started new programs and are really trying to make the food better, but it will never be the food the students are use to getting at home. However it is the only place were you can get the details on who is seeing who, what roommates are fighting about, and of course my favorite is getting all the details on the new freshman ladies."

To eat or not to eat is not the question. However it is quiet apparent that when you eat at Stewart Hall you better look your best because that someone special you are looking for may be on the menu that night.

New Quarter, New Beginnings

The start of a new quarter brings with many opportunities for new beginnings. Many students who have transferred from a school on the semester system to TSU where the quarter system is used say they like it much better. Jeff Cannon, who transferred from Huntington College, said, "When you're on the quarter system you have less time to goof off, you've got ten weeks to make good grades, not sixteen. But if you don't do as well as you should, you don't have to let it get you down for half the year, you just start fresh the next quarter and try to do better."

The beginning of a new quarter is always a busy time. Registration lines must be waited in, ID pictures have to be made, moving and settling in the dorms or an apartment must be done, bills must be paid and friends must be visited. There is a lot to do in a few days time. Jennifer Sohn said, "The beginning of a new quarter is so rushed, I use up a whole quarter's worth of energy just trying to get settled and preparing for classes to begin."

But in a bizarre kind of way, it's fun too. Kristina Lawrence said, "I stay so busy trying to get things done that I actually work more efficiently during the beginning of the quarter than at almost any other time."

Each new quarter brings with it new challenges, new chances and opportunities and a chance for new beginnings.

A Glimpse of What's to Come

Often the transition from high school to college can be a difficult and sometimes frightening experience for incoming freshman. Dreams of college life are filled with excitement and anticipation but also many anxieties. Troy State has a summer program known as Pre-College Orientation that is designed to help make this transition as easy as possible for new students.

The perspective student is invited to one of seven weekend sessions in which the student is able to meet other new students and become familiar with Troy

State's campus as well as with its policies and procedures concerning such things as registration, housing and meal tickets.

The students are able to talk to faculty members in their intended field of study, receive help in filling out schedules and actually pre-register for fall quarter during the orientation weekend.

The TSU orientation leaders play a key role in introducing the students to all aspects of TSU's campus. Ten men and women are selected from the student body on the basis of academic achievement, leadership and student involvement. These leaders guide the incoming freshmen through the orientation weekend by helping them get acquainted with other students, introducing them to the various extra-curricular activities TSU offers and by providing assistance with making out class schedules.

The orientation sessions make it easier for new students to adjust to TSU, and they leave feeling more confident about Troy State and excited about their upcoming college experience.

Making the News

After 32 grounded months, the U.S. Space Program was once again reaching for the stars. The space shuttle Discovery made a perfect launch from the Kennedy Space Center in early October, 1988.

Led by Federal special prosecutor Lawrence Walsh, the infamous Oliver North was on the defensive again. North was found guilty but questions about the Iran-Contra affair still linger.

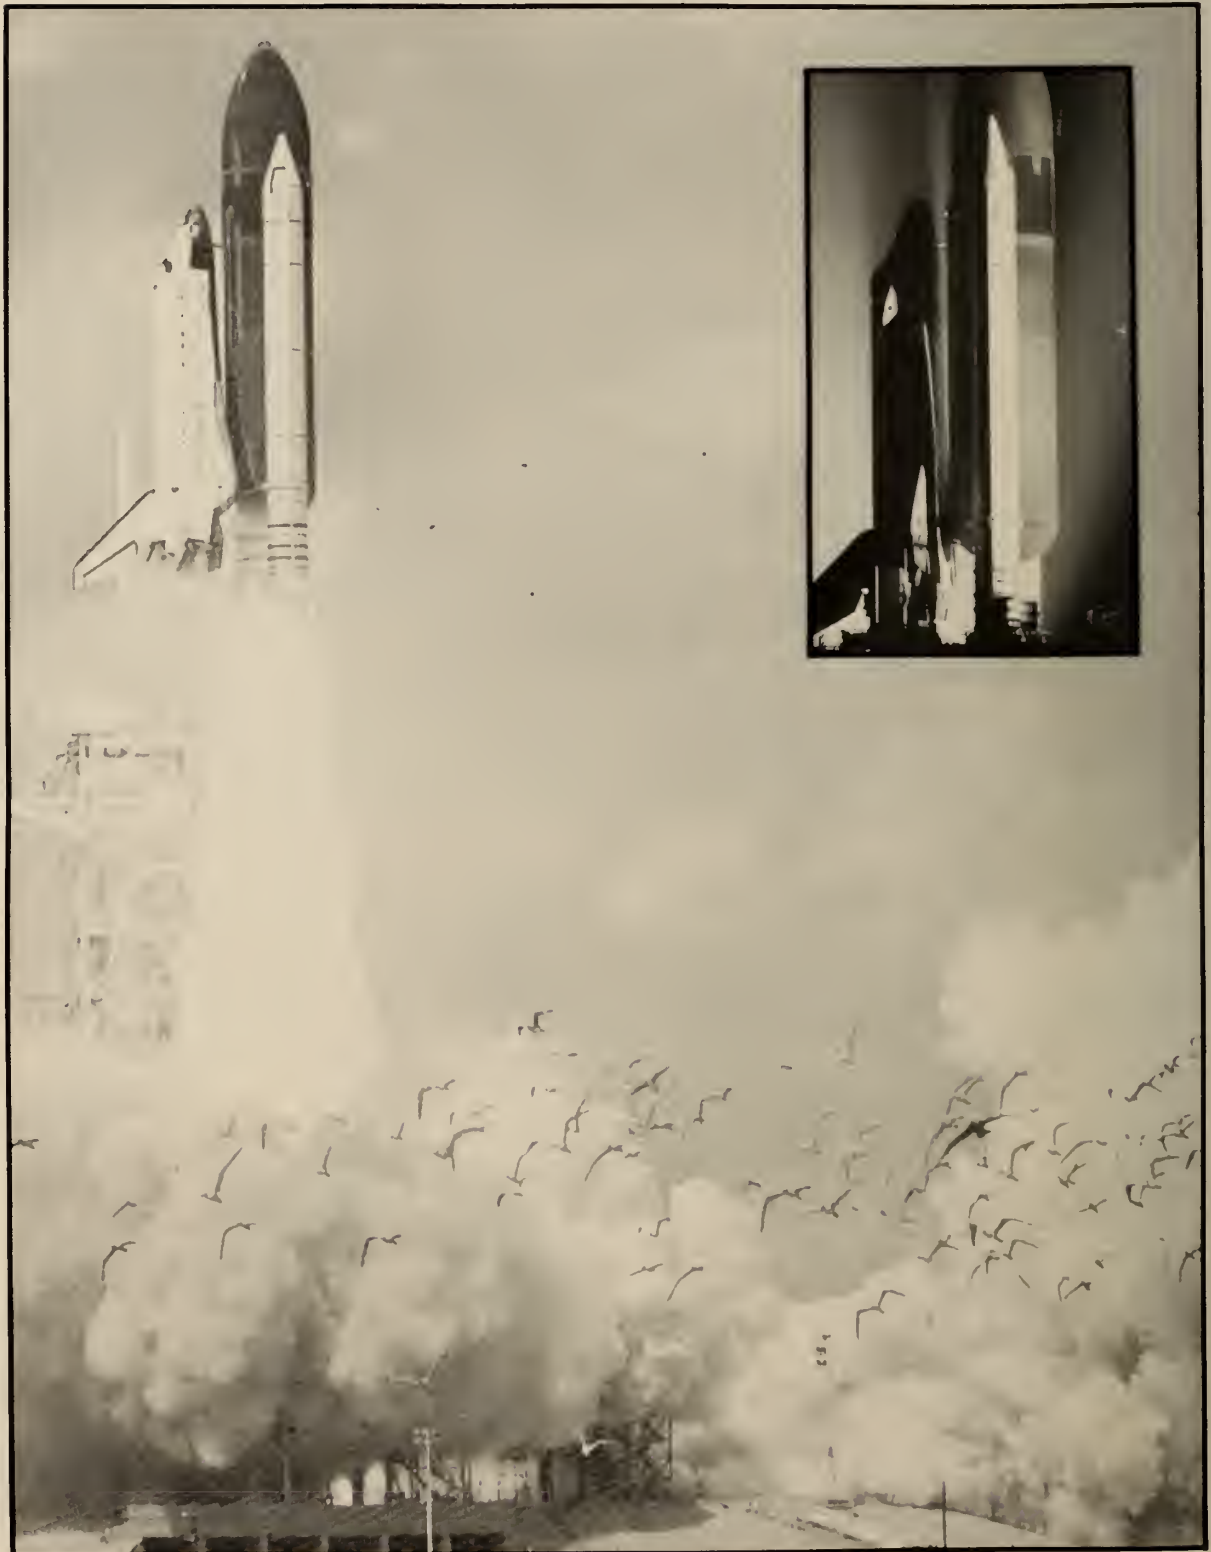

Fifteen years after the Supreme Court upheld abortion in Roe vs. Wade, the debate continues. A new type of "civil war" seems to be raging throughout America as the Pro-Life and Pro-Choice groups battle it out on the Supreme Court steps. It appears that Roe vs. Wade didn't settle the issue after all.

From the sound of the term "computer viruses", one would think that computers were literally getting sick. Well, in a sense they are. Small but deadly computer programs that disrupt operations and destroy data have infected the computer world, and have raised questions about the vulnerability of systems everywhere.

Perspective

Palestinian Liberation Organization leader Yassir Arafat made a historic gesture of peace by formally denouncing terrorism. He also made official announcements concerning official dialogue between his organization and the United States and even Israel. However, the Israelis were quick to denounce Arafat's proposals even after Secretary of State George Shultz announced the U.S. would be willing to confer with the PLO.

Political uprisings in Burma, China, Chile, and South Korea made headlines all though the year as ideals of peace swept through other countries. While the Contras were withdrawing from Afghanistan and loosening their grip on the Eastern Block countries.

In Poland, Solidarity leader Lech Walesa led his army of workers in peaceful demonstrations and strikes which forced in a new government and a trainload of much needed reforms.

The people of Chile successfully ousted their dictator with the power of the vote.

Students in Peking, China began massive protests in May of 1989 calling for sweeping reform and democracy. Even though the Chinese government banned news coverage, the students continued their vigil of democratic protest.

Iran and Iraq came to terms of peace after the Iraqi side had come close to victory. With United Nations negotiations the two countries agreed upon a ceasefire. The infamous Ayatullah Khomeini had this to say following the ceasefire agreement; "Making this decision was more deadly than drinking poison." Khomeini's reign of terror ended when he had complications following surgery and died on June 4, 1989.

The nation of Vietnam formally announced its military withdrawal from Cambodia. However, many experts fear a harsher existence may be in store for the ravaged Cambodian people as they may face another Pol Pot regime as in the mid 70's which killed over two million Cambodians.

Homecoming, the event of the year, brings the undergraduate and the alumni of Troy State University together again to share old memories and make a few new ones. With the pageantry of parades, football and the all important crowning of the Homecoming Queen, everyone finds that no matter the age of a Trojan, he still acts like a Trojan.

After Homecoming, the students await the coming of Miss TSU which is sponsored by The Palladium each year. This year's pageant was well worth the wait. With twenty-eight of TSU most beloved ladies performing, the night was one of many lasting impressions.

Cheerleading tryouts at TSU is taken very seriously by those who tryout. Extensive training and practice takes place one week prior to the actual tryout date. The practices or workshops, as they are sometimes referred to, consist of all the contestants learning a dance routine and perfecting required jumps. Only five women and five men can make the traveling team but there are two women and two men chosen as alternates.

Miss TSU 1989-90

Annemarie Bell

"Having never been in a pageant, I never realized all the hard work that went into preparing for a pageant. After lots of thought and much support from friends and family, I decided to enter the Miss TSU Pageant. I enjoy entertaining and decided this would be the best chance for me to entertain. Much of my preparation involved being informed on political and social issues for the interview, and lot of practice for talent and stage presence. Being crowned Miss TSU 1989 was one of the most exciting and surprising honors I've received at Troy State University. This honor gives me the chance to represent the University that has given me and many other students many great memories. My whole preparation for Miss TSU and Miss Alabama is centered around the support of Ms. Jacqueline Smith, my family, sorority sisters, fraternity brothers and all the TSU students. I can go to Birmingham and do my best for the University and always know I have much support behind me."

Behind the Scenes . . .

The Preperation is Tedious.

Annemarie Bell has never lost a beauty pageant. She won the first pageant she has ever been in Saturday night when she was crowned the 1989 Miss Troy State University. Bell, a 22-year-old senior majoring in criminal justice, said that she was very surprised that she won the pageant. Bell will compete in the Miss Alabama pageant in Birmingham during the second week of June. The pageant which lasts a week includes three nights of talent competition. The contestants were judged on personality, talent and appearance. The Saturday evening contest ended months of physical and mental preperation as well as a week of grueling practices, rehearsals and sleepless nights. The competition began with interviews with the judges. The culmination of the day's events came with the talent segment of the pageant that night, but the most exciting part was to be the following night. The emcee was Bob Howell, a Troy State graduate who for the past 13 years has "opened the envelope to reveal the winner". This year's winner was Annemarie Bell with First runner-up, Jennifer Childree, Second runner-up, Mary Elkins, Third runner-up, Leticia McCarley and Fourth runner-up Vernetta Rivers.

Who's Who AMONG STUDENTS IN American Universities & Colleges

Each year Troy State University recognizes a select group of students by electing them to Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges. The University's selection committee is appointed by Chancellor Adams, and includes representatives recommended by the dean of each school and college within the University and from the Division of Student Affairs.

All members of TSU faculty, staff, and administration are requested to nominate students whose academic achievement, participation and leadership in academic and extra-curricular activities, citizenship and service to the University, and promise of future usefulness are deserving of special recognition. The selection committee evaluates each nominee and selects the most deserving students for inclusion in Who's Who.

The citation presented to Bart Hendricks states, "Bart Fletcher Hendricks always has a smile on his face, a courteous attitude toward his fellow man, and a pleasant, helpful conscientiousness toward people: those characteristics representative of the Algernon Sydney Sullivan Award. In positions of leadership, he has originated and developed ideas and has led students with respect and dignity. Those around him respond to his joy, contentment, and religious faith and these qualities inspire and uplift them."

The citation presented to Dr. Long states, "Through high ideas and impeccable personal character, John Maloy Long has inspired, motivated, and encouraged generations of students and professionals in the field of music. He tries each day to be the very best husband, father, teacher, friend, and person that he can be. His greatest joy is helping other people, a quality highly recognized by the Algernon Sydney Sullivan Award. His greatest contributions are the scores of people he has stirred to emulate his personal dedication to excellence."

The citation presented to Annemarie Bell states, "Annemarie Bell is the epitome of what American youth should be and is a loyal and true friend to those who know her best. She is dedicated to her God, her family, her friends, and meets every task with diligence and fervor. Though quiet mannered, she has very strong convictions which are evident in her daily living and reflect those ideals which are recognized by the Algernon Sydney Sullivan Award."

Ingalls Award

The recipient of the 1989 Ingalls Award for Excellence in Classroom Teaching, the highest honor a Troy State University faculty member can receive was Dr. Robert L. Pullen. The Ingalls Award consists of $1000 and a plaque presented by the Ingalls Foundation of Birmingham. The Foundation supports quality teaching in colleges and universities.

Composing the selection committee was a group of students each representing his own academic discipline. The members select the recipient through a series of lengthy meetings, narrowing the many applicants to only three or four finalists. Then after the finalists are observed in their classrooms by the committee members, one finalist is chosen. The choice is often very difficult because of the outstanding finalists.

Honors

Top: Ralph Christopher Rich receives the Alpha Psi Omega Scholastic Award.

The cream of Troy State University's academic crop showed what happens when you plant your goals in solid ground . . . The Council of Honor Societies sponsored the annual Honors Convocation and presented awards for outstanding scholastic achievement.

According to Dr. Emma Norris, the convocation gives everyone a chance to be together. "The Honors Convocation is the one time when the whole University has a chance to get together and recognize academic accomplishments," Norris said. "The focus is on student achievement and it's important that we understand that we are an academic team."

Lance Wallace, an 18-year-old from Lake Wales, Fla., won the Alpha Lambda Delta Outstanding Freshman Award and was surprised when he was notified of the honor.

"I thought it was exciting that they would recognize a freshman," Wallace said. "A lot of times, an institution doesn't recognize freshman at all, but through that honor it gives motivation to students and shows that the University cares."

The Ingalls Award for Excellence in classroom teaching was awarded to Dr. Robert Pullen, an associate professor of sociology. "I was very pleased because the award is the students' evaluation of my work and that's who I work for," Pullen said.

The most prestigious award given is the Algrenon Sydney Sullivan award and is presented to the two most well-rounded students in academics and extra-curricular activities and one teacher.

Annemarie Bell of Florence and Bart Fletcher Hendricks of Jay, Fla. won this year's top student award and Dr. John M. Long of Troy won the teacher's Sullivan honor.

Vicki Hyatt, who won the Outstanding Journalism Student Award, says all the hard work paid off.

"This means more to me than any other I have ever won," Hyatt said. "It made all the hard work worthwhile." - by Kim Wickline, contributing writer.

Missionaries on the Beach

Summer Beach Project, ten weeks of living, playing, working, and learning together with other college students, is a program designed to help Christians build a solid foundation in their faith through intensive Bible study and evangelism.

In addition, the program seeks to train and equip students to be the most effective missionaries for Christ, not only at the beach and on college campuses, but also for the rest of their lives.

Troy State's Summer Beach Project, sponsored by Campus Outreach, is held at Hermitage Condominiums in Ft. Walton Beach, Florida. Students from Valdosta State and Livingston also participate in the program at Ft. Walton. Each student works 35-40 hours a week to cover the costs of rent, food and other necessities. The job teaches responsibility, dependability, and exposure to the "real" world.

"The experience of Beach Project helped me to build responsibility, to be independent and to share my faith with others," said one TSU participant.

Summer Beach Project created an environment that challenged the participants to grow into mature disciples of Christ through Bible study, prayer, witnessing, leadership training and ministering in local churches.

Campus Outreach is an interdenominational ministry on college campuses in Alabama and Georgia. The Campus Outreach staff is under the supervision of Briarwood Presbyterian Church in Birmingham, Alabama.

The "SOUND" in Washington

Troy State's very own "Sound of the South" was selected as a national representative band in the 1989 Presidential Inaugural Parade in Washington D.C. One college band from each of the 50 states was chosen to represent the nation. The selection of Troy State to be a national representative was a great honor.

This was not the first time TSU had been selected for this prestigious event. They have performed for the inauguration four times in the past, but during their last visit in 1983 the band was unable to march due to poor weather conditions. This was not the case this year. All 235 proud members of the band marched the 1.6 mile parade route along 15th Street and Pennsylvania Avenue. The band was also invited to a reception honoring George Bush.

The trip was both recreational and educational. Many band members enjoyed visiting such historical landmarks as the Pentagon, the Capital and the Lincoln and Vietnam Memorials. The students also visited both Georgetown and Williamsburg, Virginia.

TSU band member Douglas Russell said, "The trip was absolutely fantastic. It was really great to be around so many historical sites."

TSU Band Director, Dr. John M. Long commented, "This was a great honor for the university . . . it's the greatest compliment a band can receive."

High-flying Proposal

October 29, 1988, Troy State's Homecoming, is a day Mary Carol Moss will never forget. Her boyfriend and now fiance, Gerard Holzmann showed his love at a new height - literally. He wanted his marriage proposal to be different and very special, something both of them would never forget.

Gerard Holzmann, a 1984 graduate of Troy State, hired a pilot to fly an airplane above Memorial Stadium trailing a banner that read "Mary Carol, will you marry me? Love Gerard." The proposal caused excitement in the crowd. For a moment everyone in the crowd forgot about the football game being played.

"I had to repeat the proposal three times before

Mary Carol ever heard me because of the noise of the crowd," Holzmann said.

The wedding is scheduled for July 1, 1989, in Melbourne, Florida.

A Taste of China

Tsing Chen, an exchange student from Hong Kong, China, is a very competitive lady who came to America to get a better education which would put her ahead of the rest and allow her to make more money. Business management, her major, is a very popular and competitive field in China, and she wants to learn all she can. Even though expenses are high, Tsing believes America is the best place to study. "The openness and friendliness that America students share is a major difference from Chinese students," she said. Observing American students, she noted that they are not afraid to speak out about their feelings or to talk about themselves.

A new experience for Tsing was American food. She still likes rice, but she also enjoys peanuts, "the nuts in the ground." Tsing added that she really hates mashed potatoes and cannot quite seem to eat them.

Even though she misses her friends and family in Hong Kong, she loves the Alabama "country" - trees, plants and grass. "I feel that I am in the best place to study, and I love the friends I have made here in Troy," Chen said.

The World Comes to Troy

Many students live and grow in a world whose boundaries seldom extend beyond the Southeastern United States. Others, however, have the great fortune to travel and experience the world with their own senses and are not resigned to sit and see the world on MTV or some other television network.

Ian Hunt is one such student whose privilege in life has been to fit into the "other" category. As the son of the American Defense and Army Attache stationed in the American Embassy in New Delhi, India. Living in India since his father's appointment in 1986, Ian spends three to four months of each year in India.

"Living in India has amounted to an incredible opportunity to learn and grow in a foreign culture," Hunt said.

The Himalayan mountain range, the "mother" Ganges River and historical monuments like the Taj Mahal and the Holy Cows have all become common-place to Ian. Through all of his experiences, he has learned that this is a fascinating world and each of us should make every effort to learn what other people, those people beyond our horizons, think and know and do.

Troy Students Lend a Helping Hand

During the 1989 school year, several students from the Education Department volunteered to be weekend counselors at the world's largest handicapped camp, Camp ASSCA. Camp ASSCA serves children and adults with both physical and mental disabilities from all over the Southeast.

Camp ASSCA is located in Jackson Gap, Alabama on beautiful Lake Martin. The goal of the camp is to give the disabled a real-life camping experience. While at camp, the campers participated in fishing, tree climbing, horseback riding, canoeing, and in arts and craft with the assistance of weekend volunteers.

Being a weekend counselor can be scary at first because of the insecurity of the campers and their disabilities, but the tension is soon released after realizing that the shell does not make the person.

These weekends were special to the campers and the counselors because they became the best of friends. Why don't you find a friend, he or she is only a weekend away.

Lisa Palmisano has been running competitively since she was a sophomore in high school. Running comes easy to her. Between her sophomore and senior years, she competed in short races, from the mile to the 10k (6.2 miles). She wanted to know what running a marathon was like, and in December 1986, she found out!

After running the 26.2 mile run in three hours and 52 minutes without stopping, she felt great! But vouched that it was one thing she would never try twice!

Almost three years later, Lisa found herself filling out an application to run the New York City Marathon. This race attracts runners from over 80 countries and has about 25,000 entries. "I asked myself if I was being realistic about my decision. I knew I would have to train specifically for this race, and with the shape I was in, I was skeptical," she said.

The New York City Marathon was on November 6, 1988. Her boyfriend, Kenny, was making the trip with her.

Lisa had everything packed, or at least she thought she did. At Montgomery Airport Lisa realized that she had left a duffel bag in Troy. In this duffel bag were her running shoes!! Just the night before her parents joked with her about forgetting her running shoes - and she just laughed at them.

Running in New York

Kenny's mom and Jason Stephenson made sure she had her shoes "overnight". Now what else could go wrong?

Anxious to run on Sunday, Lisa rose at 5:00 am. She had to be at the New York Public Library by 7:am to catch the bus to Staten Island.

Finally at 10:30 am, 25,000 runners piled together at the start, and Lisa was crunched between six foreign runners that did not use Dial. The cannon went off, and Lisa finally started to run. "Some runners were dressed in costumes. One runner carried a birthday cake and another was even painting an oil picture," Palmisano said.

Lisa started feeling pain at about the 15th mile. Her knees were numb and her feet were raw. At the 18th mile, she started to feel depressed and wanted to quit. "All I wanted to do was eat a hot pretzel and lie down," she said.

She entered Central Park with only three miles left in the race. Passing a guy running with his dog, Palmisano remembers thinking, "If that dog could make it on four legs, I knew I could make it on two."

As she sprinted across the finish line and almost collapsed, she received a medal and a bottle of cold water.

Although her time of five hours and 28 minutes was way off her goal of four hours and 30 minutes, she accomplished a feat that not many people could ever dream of doing. As for running another marathon - FORGET IT!!

Sigma Chi to the Rescue

Fraternity guys strike fear into the hearts of many. They stay out too late, drink too much and skip too many classes.

However, their image may be changing, thanks to at least three Sigma Chi brothers. Bill Gauspohl, Ken Merriman and Greg Willis are all helping citizens of Troy and Pike County by working with a local ambulance service.

"Bill and I are drivers and Ken is an intermediate," said Willis. Drivers assist paramedics and intermediates, who are more advanced, work some with the patients, Willis added.

"We must do whatever the situation calls for," Willis said. "Our basic duty is to work with paramedics to provide emergency medical care for the people of Pike County."

"You have to have a strong stomach and enjoy helping people because the rewards definitely aren't monetary," Willis said.

Wrecks involving friends are especially difficult, said Willis. "If a car looks familiar, I sometimes catch my breath, but I cannot let it interfere with my work," he said.

"Ungrateful people are also abundant," said Willis. "It seems people would be more appreciative."

"It is sometimes difficult when I get an emergency call in the middle of the night, and I still have to make an early class in the morning," he said.

Willis is currently taking management classes. After he leaves TSU, he will attend school two more years to complete his fire engineering and safety technician degree.

Thailand with a Mission

Bart Wigginton has a dream to become a foreign missionary on a college campus. His dream came true, if only for a short time, when he went to Thailand as a summer missionary June 5 through August 8, 1988. Bart and eight other TSU students joined with several other college teams to be a part of The Cross Cultural Project sponsored by Campus Crusade for Christ.

During their stay in Thailand these students actively shared the gospel with Thai students on several major university campuses. Not only was the trip a missionary project but also a training project for the students. "The trip encouraged me in my walk with the Lord," Wigginton said.

Buddhism is the major religion in Thailand with 95% of the country's people being followers. Bart and the other students were exposed to Thai culture and Buddhist viewpoint. Even though the Thais have very strict customs and dress very moderately, "They are slowly showing skin," comments Wigginton.

Wigginton, 23, is from Leeds, Alabama. Upon graduation from TSU, Bart will work toward making his dream become a reality by using the training he received in Thailand.

The other TSU students that went on the Thailand trip were: Eric Anderson, Sam Bowdoin, Stacey Clark, Cathy Crow, George Dothard, Denise Hill, Michael Lee, and Charles Windham.

College of the Bizzare Retires

Ben Baker, famous for his column, "College of the Bizzare", is a person who is willing to stand up and speak out for what he believes is right. He is not afraid of criticism or the attention he receives.

The idea for his column came from a contest co-sponsored by a South Florida and a Texan newspaper. The purpose of the contest was to find the largest cock roach. The contest came to the attention of Priscilla Teal, former editor of the Tropicopolitan, and Jim Joseph, who asked Ben to hold his own roach contest.

Baker's contest was called "Centennial Roach Contest" with the Biggest Roach Award presented to the winner. The article led to his regular column, "College of the Bizzare". In his first column he misspelled Bizarre, unintentionally, and the misspelling has stuck.

Ben's ideas for his column come from everywhere, but his best articles come "when he just sits down at the computer and writes, not really thinking about it first". His articles range from the dress code on the golf course to parking problems on campus, but he always reverts back to the roaches because that is where he got his start.

"I write my articles with satire and humor, and I try to look at life with a different view," Baker said.

Ben enjoys his job because he loves to talk and to meet people, but, at the same time, he dislikes it because writing a column involves too much time and he runs out of things to write about.

"College of the Bizzare" appears weekly in the Tropicopolitan.

Entertainment

Troy State students had a wide range of cultural experiences to choose from during the year.

The drama department presented plays that ranged from serious drama to hilarious comedies. During the Alabama Shakespeare Festival's visit they presented their rendition of William Shakespeare's play Hamlet.

The Adams Center Union Board presented TSU students with the opportunity to see well known groups Chicago and Cheap Trick. Also, the ACUB presented movies and a variety of tournaments for TSU students to participate in.

The events of the year left TSU students with many exciting and lasting impressions.

Let TSU Entertain You!

Stop. Take a minute to think and remember. How often do you complain "There's nothing to do around here . . . I'm so bored,"? If you're really honest with yourself, you will probably realize it's fairly often.

Students often joke about TSU's slogan "Alabama's Most Exciting Campus", but in fact, it's no joke at all. Excitement, activity and opportunity are abundant here at Troy State. The real joke is on those students who fail to take advantage of it.

Troy State has something for everyone whether you're a jock, a bookworm, an eccentric artist or just somewhere in between.

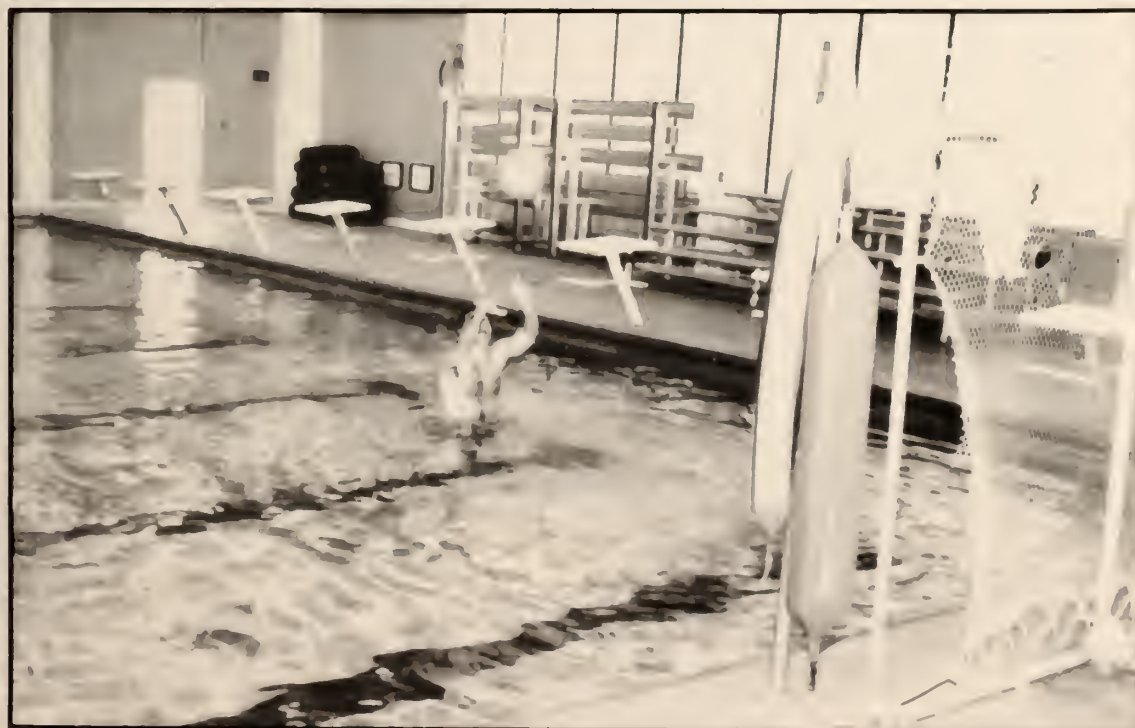

For the athletically inclined, there is inter-collegiate competition as well as intramural sports of all kinds. But even if you're not into structured sports, there is the pool, weightroom, and the tennis and basketball courts for your own personal use.

Ok, you say you're uncoordinated and definitely not athletic. What about joining one of the many organizations that are active on campus? There are professional, social and honor societies that are great places to enhance and broaden your knowledge and to meet new people and have fun. There are also religious groups of all denominations on campus available to students.

Still not convinced TSU can keep you busy? What about getting involved in a drama production, the Forensics team or one of the campus singing groups?

The ACUB also sponsors many events on campus each quarter for students to participate in and enjoy such as the quarterly concerts, the weekly movies and the various tournaments.

Now, if after going through the above possibilities of "things to do at TSU" you don't find at least one thing to occupy your time, well then, you can always study.

Top: Each fall and winter quarter, ACUB sponsors a big name concert, like "Chicago", for student entertainment.

Bottom: The pool is just one of the recreational facilities on campus available to students.

The TSU Department of Speech and Drama, under the direction of Tom Smiley, presented William Saroyan's "The Time Of Your Life" on January 30-31, 1989, in Smith Hall Auditorium.

The play was written just before World War II. The author saw his play as an allegory of the times. Each character was an interesting person in the play, but on another level, each represented a different quality of mankind alive in the world of 1939.

The plot focuses on Joe, a wealthy patron of Nick's bar. Joe constantly studies the world around him-what makes a baby sob crying, why a stop sounds so sad and why men and women constantly strive to succeed when it would be simpler to quit. His errand boy, Tom, is in love with Kitty, a prostitute that works out of Nick's bar. Joe, who does not have a love, aids Tom in helping Kitty get out of her unhappy life because he realizes that this is the way Tom survives in this unhappy world.

Many other interesting characters come to Nick's: Kit Carson, the old cowboy; Harry, the comedian and dancer, Wesley, a down-and-out young man who plays a mean piano and Dudley, who keeps phoning his girl, Elsie, until she finally will talk to him on the phone. All of these people are fighting to live a good life in a world on the brink of annihilation.

Into the bar comes Blick. He is a vice cop who wants to clean up the waterfront. This guy's bad-he doesn't want people to live their own lives-but live the way he thinks they should. He's mean and he treats Kitty like dirt, wanting her to prove she's an actress-not a whore-by stripping like she did in burlesque. It takes all the good people in Nick's bar to put down this man who wants to quash the life out of people.

HAMLET

The Alabama Shakespeare Festival, one of the nation's leading professional theatres, presented William Shakespeare's towering tragedy, Hamlet, Prince of Denmark, on September 26, 1988 in

Smith Auditorium. Sponsored by the Troy State University Lyceum Series, the production of the Bard's monumental tale of love, murder and revenge was mounted directly from the Alabama Shakespeare Festival's home in Montgomery, Alabama.

The ASF began its touring program in 1978 as a cultural and educational outreach program for the festival. Through touring, the ASF brings professional theater directly to citizens throughout the state and region.

Shakespeare's most famous tragedy tells the tale of how Hamlet's heroic quest for truth costs the young prince his love, liberty, and finally his life.

The 18th Century comedy, "She Stoops To Conquer" by Oliver Goldsmith was presented by the TSU Department of Speech and Drama, under the direction of Dr. David Dye, in Smith Hall Auditorium on October 20-23, 1988.

The story takes place during one night in the 1800s when young Marlow and his friend, Hastings, travel from London to the country to visit the Hardcastles. Young Marlow and Kate Hardcastle, matched by their parents, have never met. On their journey Marlow and Hastings lose their way and ask for directions to the house at a tavern. The prankster, Tony Lumpkin, deceives the travelers into thinking that the Hardcastle's home is an inn and Mr. Hardcastle is the landlord.

Young Marlow subsequently assumes that Kate Hardcastle, who is wearing a house dress appropriate for the country, is a bar maid. Kate takes advantage of the misunderstanding to break down Marlow's reserve. Hastings and Miss Neville, Mrs. Hardcastle's niece, plan an elopement and are assisted by Tony. Hardcastle's inept servants add to the merriment, and mistakes of the night are pleasantly corrected during the resolution of the plot.

The costumes for the production were designed by Margaret Pyfrom, a former TSU theatre major. Ms. Pyfrom constructed garments from the original patterns of the late 1800's and according to Director Dr. David Dye, "She Stoops To Conquer" is one of the most elaborate costume productions ever presented by the department. The authenticity of the designs added to the audience's appreciation of the play as one of the masterpieces of dramatic literature.

Auditions

As we, the audience, view a dramatic production, it is through the character's portrayal that the events and circumstances of the play are made real to us. For this reason, the casting of characters in a play is crucial to its effectiveness as a performance.

The process by which this careful selection is made is called auditioning. Through auditioning, potential cast members are able to try out for various available parts in a production. Regardless of the size of the part, auditioning is done to ensure that the best person for each particular role is selected. Because all of the characters combine to make the overall production a success, no one part is less significant than another.

The auditions and the casting are done by the director of the production and each director varies in his style and method for conducting auditions. The auditions are conducted both privately and openly, depending on the director's preference. However, generally speaking, auditioning may consist of reading a script with your interpretation of the character in the designated scene, impromptu acting, performing a prepared monologue, and if applicable to the production, an individual may be requested to sing.

Patrick Hall, a TSU drama student, says that the most important thing to do in an audition is to be yourself. "It is important to relax and be yourself and if you're not selected, don't be offended, it simply means that the character you auditioned for didn't best suit you."

While conducting the auditions, a director not only looks for talent but also for people who will be easy to work with. He also assesses an individual's diversity, as well as their capabilities and limits.

Once the director has seen all of the potential cast, he begins to narrow down his choices. After this is done, he will announce the "call backs"-those persons who will get another chance to audition. This process continues until the final casting selection is made.

Through the careful selection of the cast by the process of auditioning, a talented and workable cast is hopefully created, who will in turn, perform the production in a professional and successful manner.

Cheap Trick

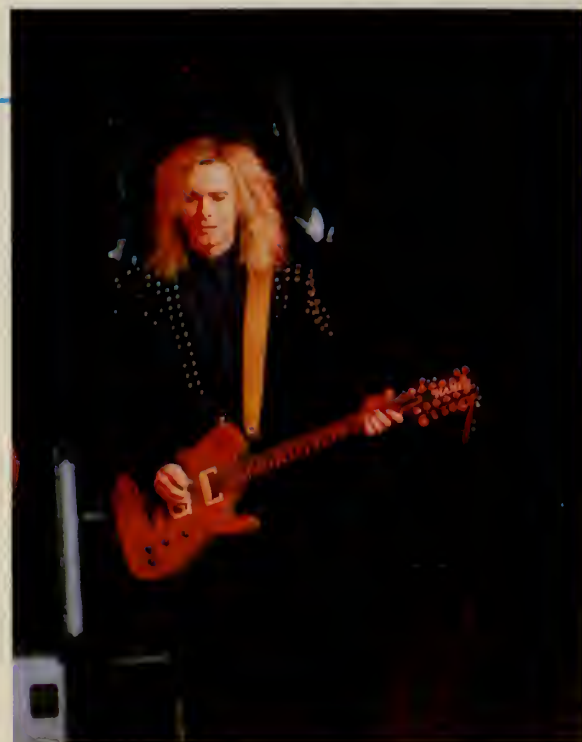

An Evening in the Lap of Luxury

On October 25, 1988, Cheap Trick brought their Lap of Luxury tour to Garrett Coliseum in Montgomery. Sponsored by the Adams Center Union Board, the concert was the highlight of the fall quarter entertainment schedule.

Femme Fatale, an increasingly popular rock and roll band served as the opening act. Singing such numbers as "Rebel" and "Falling In and Out of Love", the band warmed up the audience for the headlining act.

Cheap Trick entertained the enthusiastic crowd by performing a variety of their hits both from the past and the present. Singing such current hits as "The Flame", "Let Go" and "Don't Be Cruel" as well as some of their still popular former hits such as "The Dream Police" and "I Want You To Want Me", the band put on a show that TSU students will not soon forget.

The TSU Lyseum Series

The United States Air Force Band and Singing Sergeants brought their 20-city tour to Troy State's Smith Hall Auditorium on October 9, 1988. The event was sponsored by the TSU Lyceum Series.

The band, under the command and conduction of Lieutenant Colonel James M. Bankhead, performed to a packed house of appreciative TSU students and faculty and Troy community members.

The band performed many delightful pieces including an excerpt from the "Grand Canyon Suite" and "A Rogers and Hammerstein Memoir".

The Singing Sergeants brought the audience to their feet several times with a medley of songs which took everyone on a trip across America. Tunes such as "Chatanooga Choo-Choo", "Georgia on My Mind" and "Rocky Mountain High" were performed.

The performance was a great success. As the audience was leaving the auditorium, many could be heard humming many of the tunes they had just heard.

The Atlanta Chamber Players

TSU's Lyceum Committee, with help from Troy State's chapter of the Collegiate Music Educator's National Conference brought the Atlanta Chamber Players to Smith Auditorium on February 13, 1989.

The group includes Pamela Askew, viola; Melanie Cramer, flute and music director; Ian Ginsberg, cello; Thomas Jones, violin; and Paula Peace, piano.

The five musicians studied at top schools of music and have received national acclaim for their talents. Dr. Diane DeNicola, the assistant professor of music coordinating the event, described the Atlanta performers as a "young, up-and-coming premier group."

The repertoire of the Atlanta Chamber Players ranges from the traditional masterpieces of Brahms and Beethoven to the more contemporary classics of Ives and Shostakovich.

The program included "Piano Trio No.4 in E Minor", by Antonin Dvorak; "Flute Quartet in G Major", by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart and "Piano Quartet", by Aaron Copland.

In addition to the concert, the group worked with the general studies music classes and some of the music major classes, lecturing and sharing their own experiences.

Chicago

On February 14, 1989, the long acclaimed group Chicago, performed at the Garret Coliseum in Montgomery as Troy State's Winter quarter concert. The concert was sponsored by the Adams Center Union Board.

The seven-member band, which originally hails from the windy city, played to an appreciative audience of TSU students. The band's mix of love songs and pop-rock music enhanced the already romantic atmosphere of Valentines Day.

The band performed a variety of their music from both the past and the present. Songs such as "Saturday in the Park" and "Color My World" pleased the older, long-time followers of the group, while newer and more current songs such as "You're the Inspiration" and "Look Away" entertained the newer Chicago fans.

The band's utilization of many brass and woodwind instruments is but one of their distinct trademarks. These additional instruments were used to enhance both the music and the atmosphere.

Overall, the evening's performance was one in which an individual could sit back, relax and enjoy a variety of entertaining, good music.

BRIGHTON BEACH MEMOIRS

NEIL SIMON

Cast of Characters

Eugene	Wayne Simpkins
Blanche	Margaret Byrd Wingate
Kate	Lynne Balducci
Laurie	Ashley Mann
Nora	Elizabeth Fowler
Stanley	C.J. Wilson
Jack	Danny Gilroy
Director	David Dye

Brighton Beach Memoirs is Neil Simon's autobiographical memory play, a portrait of a writer as a Brooklyn teenager in 1937 living with his family in crowded, lower-middle-class circumstances. Eugene is the narrator and central character. His mind is full of fiercely fantasized dreams of baseball and dimly fantasized images of girls.

The play's scenes consist of a few days in the life of a struggling Jewish household that includes Eugene's hard working father, Peter; his sharp-tongued mother, Kate; his older and vastly more experienced brother, Stanley; his widowed Aunt Blanche and her two young daughters. As Eugene's father says, "if you didn't have a problem, you wouldn't live in this house." Two have heart disease, one has asthma, two at least temporarily lose jobs needed to keep the straitened family afloat.

Mr. Simon uses the family miseries to raise such enduring issues as sibling resentments, guilt-ridden parent-child relationships and the hunger for dignity in a poverty-stricken world. It is a deeply appealing play that deftly mixes drama with comedy.

Carmen

The Troy State University Opera Workshop presented 'Carmen' in Smith Hall Auditorium on May 17, 19-20, 1989. According to Dr. Phil Kelley, director, "The opera is probably one of the the most popular of all operas and has been sung on stages throughout the world."

Action, love, adventure and murder plots, dialogue and comedy combine with music for the opera, set in old Seville, Spain. The story centers around the life of a gypsy girl named Carmen who works in a cigarette factory. She entices a corporal of the guard to forsake his allegiance to the law, his home and his country in order to join a band of smugglers.

The leading characters were portrayed by Tamara Lee Boyd, a senior from Dothan, AL, as Carmen, Don Aplin, a senior from Crestview, FL, as Don Jose, Jennifer Lyn Birks, a senior from Seminole, AL, as Micaela and Rob Ivey, a senior from Richland, GA, as Escamillo.

The opera combined great talent, beautiful scenery and authentic costumes to create a memorable performance.

Organizations

Being in a organization means more than just paying dues and showing up for the yearbook photo at TSU. It takes hard work and dedication to achieve the active goals of the TSU organizations. From international parties and picnics sponsored by members of the Internation Student Cultural Organization to weekly activities by groups like the Baptist Student Union, Delta Sigma Pi and many more.

Each Organization offers TSU students a place were they can have some fun and build lasting impressions.

Student Government Association

Debbie McGill
President

Acting on the reconstruction that occurred during the past administration, this year's Student Government Association has gone forth to enhance relationships among students, between students and University personnel. We began the year with a new procedure in regard to student senate elections. For the first time in years, a campus wide campaign was necessary to win a Senate seat.

Homecoming 1988 was a big event for the SGA, as it was dedicated to retiring Chancellor Ralph W. Adams. With the overall theme of "Thank You, Dr. and Mrs. Adams," the SGA and the student body was more involved than ever before in the week-long activities of Homecoming.

Other successful events followed throughout the year, including Alcohol Awareness Week, the annual basketball tournament, and the community Easter-egg hunt.

The success of the SGA has come from the dedication and hard work of the officers and the young, ambitious Senate. With unity and perseverance, the SGA established itself as a respected and efficient organization on the Troy State campus in the state of Alabama.

ACUB

The Adams Center Union Board, ACUB, works to provide a variety of entertainment and activities for Troy State students. For the price of a program sticker which students may purchase at the beginning of each quarter, students can enjoy big name concerts, Wednesday night movies, and many other tournaments and activities. Cheap Trick appeared in concert Fall of 1988 compliments of ACUB, and Chicago entertained students Winter Quarter of 1989. In addition to such professional entertainment, ACUB helped students become directly involved through pool tournaments, a step-sing and the "Roommate Game."

Tropolitan

Printing news, sports scores, opinions and pizza coupons, the Tropolitan seeks to inform students, staff and administration of campus events and issues. The student newspaper is published every Thursday for TSU students. All writing, editing, layout, paste-up, typesetting and selling of advertisements is done by Troy State students. The Tropolitan provides practical experience for student journalists by giving them an introduction to news reporting, editing, photography and the mechanical aspects of the newspaper.

Trojan Ambassadors

Begun in 1983 as the official group of university hosts, The Trojan Ambassadors are twenty students who serve as tourguides for campus visitors; as ushers for various programs on campus; and as assistants to the Chancellor and First Lady for the Homecoming reception.

The Trojan Ambassadors also entertain prospective students and their parents during campus visitations, particularly on Saturday mornings.

Ambassadors serve one-year terms, and new members are selected by application and interview each spring.

Increasing its membership from 10 in 1987 to 72 in 1988, the College Republicans underwent a complete turn around in 1988-89. Most of the interest in College Republicans was fed by the Presidential election, President Bush being a Republican, of course. Rewriting the College Republican Constitution for the Troy State chapter and participating in national, state, and local elections were only two of the many activities in which TSU College Republicans were involved. Additionally, the organization boasted of the candidacy of two Troy State students in the State College Republicans Elections, Susan Carroll for Chairman and Dave Britton for Vice-Chairman.

University Dancers

The University Dancers are a group of hardworking young women who must audition to be selected as a dancer. After being selected, the girls practice twice a week for programs and an annual show that is performed for all the students on campus. The advisor for the group is Ms. Beverly Fillingam.

Tau Beta Sigma is a national band fraternity for women whose purpose is to promote achievement and excellence in music and to serve the Sound of the South band in every capacity. In 1988-89, the Tau Beta Sigma women started the school year by sponsoring several parties for the band including one for Freshmen and one at Halloween. During Winter Quarter the new pledges were inducted and Tau Beta Sigma hosted the district band contest and band clinic and also attended the district convention. Spring Quarter, the Fraternity's main project was the hosting of the State Five Day Band clinic held at Troy State.

The brothers join with the other music organizations at Troy State University to make the music programs successful. Besides serving the music department on campus, Phi Mu Alpha performs for various audiences on and off campus. Two such public performances included a concert at Sorrell Chapel in May and a concert at the Jean Lake Arts Festival. Parties, cookouts, softball games, banquets, formals, and workshops are also a part of Phi Mu Alpha's agenda.

Sigma Alpha Iota is an international music fraternity for women which strives for excellence in furthering, establishing, and maturing the musical talents of its sisterhood. The fraternity serves the Troy State music department by volunteering for parts in the spring musical, selling concessions, and ushering at various performances in Smith Hall. Additionally, the sisters raise money for their philanthropies which are national music organizations such as the Braille Music School, perform a spring musical, participate in various concerts, and join with their brother fraternity Phi Mu Alpha in service and social activities.

Collegiate Singers

For Troy State students who sing, the Collegiate Singers is an excellent opportunity to be involved.

The Collegiates present a major concert each quarter. Their 1988-89 season consisted of the Fall Sing in November, Requiem by Rutter and Gloria by Vivaldi in March and the Spring Pops Concert in April. Additionally, the Singers performed at various other formal functions such as the dedication ceremony of the Dorothy K. Adams Center.

Collegiate Singers: Jason Grace, Don McGee, Ken Maraman and Ladd Lewis make up the group called "Flashbacks" which has performed at the past two Spring Pops Concerts.

Besides performing in an on campus concert each quarter, the Madrigals have several tours during the school year including a Christmas tour to various surrounding high schools, touring engagements with the Collegiate Singers, and performances at various clubs and community organizations in the Troy area. A favorite at the Spring Pops Concert, the Madrigals performed numbers including a version of The Battle Hymn of the Republic done with sign language.

Troy State Band

It's halftime at a Troy State football game. From the pressbox comes that familiar voice announcing the band which students and fans so expectantly wait to hear; Troy State's pride- "The Souund of the Sououth!" Under the direction of Dr. John Long and Drum Major Chris Walker, the marching band sweeps across the field playing TSU students' favorite band tune, "Dixie."

During the 1988-89 school year, this scene was re-enacted several times, always to the applause, shouts and whistles of the audience. However, Memorial Stadium was not the only place The Sound performed. Their itinerary included performances at the Central Florida game in Orlando, the Jacksonville State game and numerous parades and contests in Enterprise, Dothan and other towns. Yet the highlights of the year were undoubtedly the trip to Tampa Bay to play for the Buccaneers and to Washington D.C. to participate in the Inaugural parade.

The Sound not only boasted such honors as these appearances, but also of the continuing academic excellence among band members. According to Dr. Long and Dr. Adams, the Sound of the South with it's high achievers and memorable performances truly was "Number One" in 1988-89.

Greeks

The Greek life is a life where the unexpected can be expected. The events of Greek life range from social theme parties to fund raising for national philanthropy projects.

Greeks are also actively involved in all campus activities as well. From holding offices in organizations, to striving for academic excellence, "brothers" and "sisters" always lend a helping hand whenever needed.

The Greek experience offers an active college life as well as lasting impressions.

roy State University sororities enjoyed another successful rush this fall with more than 190 girls receiving bids to join sororities.

"Our numbers were well distributed," said Miss Patterson, director of Housing and Greek affairs.

"We had 218 girls start the rush week and we pledged 193, so there were not as many girls dropped this year as in the past years."

For the first time on TSU campus, quota, which is the total possible girls a sorority is allowed to pledge was set at 42. In the past quota averaged around 34 to 35 girls.

Another day was added to rush this year, called Panhellenic Day. Sorority members were permitted to wear only simple jersey and jeans outfits with no elaborate costumes or skits allowed during the party. The day was added to help rushees and sorority members to get to know each other better and to promote the Greek system.

After Panhellenic rush ended, rush for the Delta Sigma Theta sorority began. According to Kyna McCall, president of DST, the differences between their rush and the Panhellenic rush were many.

The Deltas hold rush after classes begin, while the five Panhellenic sororities have rush before classes start. A girl must be a sophomore with at least a 2.5 gpa to pledge Delta Sigma Theta, while a freshman with a 2.0 gpa may pledge a Panhellenic sorority.

The Kappa Delta sisters are ready for the rushees to come through the door.

Rush is a unique experience for anyone who has the opportunity to experience it. Think for a second. You are an incoming freshman. You know nothing about college life. The only people on campus you know are a few guys that live near you in the dorm, and maybe some guys you graduated with in high school. You finally get all of your junk moved in your room, and you have nothing to do. So you wander aimlessly around for a while and you see some papers stuck to the wall of the dorm. The papers are inviting you to rush parties at some of the Fraternity houses.

You are now walking up to one of the houses, carrying butterflies in your stomach. When you walk in the door you are greeted by someone that sticks a name tag on your shirt. You talk to him for a while and he introduces you to someone else, who then introduces you to a few more people. After a while you know half of the people in the house, but you can't remember a single name. You do this at two or three houses in a night, and you think you know half of the campus, but you still can't remember any names. In that one night you have learned how to relate with other people. Rush is not only a time to meet people and decide which fraternity you want to join, but it is also a time for growth and development in human relations. This is why everyone should experience Fraternity rush.

Panhellenic and Interfraternity Council

Governing the Greeks

The TSU Panhellenic Council stands for good scholarship, good health and maintenance of fine standards. When the Panhellenic Council meets, they discuss and take care of sorority matters. The Interfraternity Council is the governing body for all fraternities and is composed of representatives from each of the TSU fraternities. IFC holds the same responsibilities as the Panhellenic Council as well as working closely with Panhellenic.

Mr. IFC and Miss Panhellenic

Pat Smith

Ginger Piazza

Each year, two Greeks, one male and one female are chosen Mr. IFC and Miss Panhellenic. The award is based on outstanding contributions to the Greek system and on superior leadership in an individual Greek organization and in campus activities. Pat Smith is a brother of the Delta Chi Fraternity. He likes to be constantly involved with something and always keeps busy. Ginger Piazza is a sister of the Phi Mu Sorority and is President of the Panhellenic Council. Ginger is very involved with campus activities and has won the respect of her sisters, peers, and faculty. Both awards were presented during the Miss Venus Pageant during Greek Week.

Mr. and Miss Greek

Dan Boswell

Rachel Hawkins

The Mr. and Miss Greek award is determined by the sororities and fraternities through their respective Greek Week chairperson. The chairperson nominates a faculty member, advisor or any person involved with Troy State that he or she might find particularly helpful to the Greek system. The nominees are voted on and the winners are recognized during the Miss Venus Pageant held early Spring quarter. This year's winners of the Mr. and Miss Greek awards were Dan Boswell and Rachel Hawkins. Dan Boswell is the Assistant Director of the Adams Center and Rachel Hawkins is the Chapter Advisor of Chi Omega Sorority. The Mr. and Miss Greek winners work with Greeks daily and their patience and dedication is appreciated by all.

GREEK

Greek Week is a special week which is recognized annually by all sororities and fraternities on Troy State's campus. This week encourages athletic competition while promoting good sportsmanship.

The events ranged from the Miss Venus pageant, in which the winner reigns over the exciting week, to the ever-so-competitive swim meet which brings an end to the athletic competition. Other events included dizzy bat, tug-of-war, mud volleyball and musical ice chairs, to name a few.

1989-90 Miss Venus

Bellamie Sauls

Greek Week began with the annual Miss Venus Pageant. Thirty-one young ladies representing various fraternities and sororities competed for the title of Miss Venus 1989-90 and for the honor of reigning over Troy State's Greek System for the next year. From the original thirty-one contestants, the judges chose the semi-finalists. After a walk by the remaining contestants, the judges named the final five contestants. Each of the five women answered a question about Greek life at Troy State. The judges considered each girl's answer as well as her beauty and poise.

Sports

It can be said that the sports season started in the dark, at least for those who attended the Livingston football game in TSU Memorial Stadium when a transformer blew during the fourth quarter with 12 minutes 41 seconds left to play. After it was decided that the lights in the main stadium could not be restored, the game was moved to the practice field.

This event seemed to foretell of the dark losses that followed the sports programs at TSU.

The images of the year in sports, some good and some bad, left TSU students with many lasting impressions.

Laying New

Foundations

It was a year of great possibilities and tragic realities for the Troy State Trojans. A year of missed opportunities, strange occurrences and missed comrades. The pre-season pick to be Gulf South Conference champions and figured to play a part in the expanded format of the Division II playoffs, the Trojans wound up with a 4-6 record. Their first losing season since 1982. The year of the "Black Triangle" was dedicated to three Trojan footballers who met untimely deaths during the off-season. The 1988 season was darkened by the absence of Sean Miller, Thomas Miller and Mark Chipman. Their numbers, 69, 85 and 94, have been retired for the remainder of their eligibility at Troy State. TSU started the season with those predictions in sight. In a season opening victory against Southeast Missouri State University the Trojans experienced the longest game of their history, and used two fields in defeating the Indians. Leading 19-13 in the fourth quarter, a steady rain caused a transformer to blow, leaving Memorial Stadium in darkness. After attempting to find another field in the area, the teams agreed to finish the contest on TSU's upper practice field. TSU's Tony Young scored the only points of the final 12:41 played on the practice field, and the Trojans notched their first victory by a 23-16 margin. The Trojans opened up their conference slate against the Tigers of Livingston University with a 28-14 victory. During that game, freshman kicker Brian Wilson connected on four of six field goal attempts, setting a new TSU record. The Trojan special teams also played well, scoring a safety on a bad punt attempt and adding a touchdown when Gerrick Pimentia also recovered a bad snap and fell on it in the end-zone. Game three for the Trojans was the Super Bowl of small school match-ups. The undefeated Trojans traveled to Orlando to play the University of Central Florida Knights. The Trojans had disposed of the Knights in the semi-finals of the NCAA Div.

II playoffs a year earlier, and the fans and UCF players were set on revenge. A Div. II record crowd of 31,789 turned out for the game, which had been built up by the media as a battle of Goliaths. No. 1 ranked TSU versus No. 3 UCF. The Trojans are fired up as they built a 12-6 half-time lead, on Bob Godsey's one yard TD run and a 61 yard pass play to Kenny Edenfield. The Trojans kept up the momentum through the third period, as fullback Tony Young scored from the one, giving TSU the commanding 18-6 lead. Mistakes and a hostile crowd then began to take their toll. The Trojans, who had missed all extra point attempts, allowed the Knights to claim a 19-18 lead midway through the fourth quarter. Facing a fourth and three at its own 27, TSU attempted a fake punt which failed. Four plays later, UCF was in the endzone again putting the game out of reach. The Trojans regrouped with a sound thrashing of the West Georgia College Braves. The game belonged to the Trojans as they rolled up a 31-0 score during the first three quarters of the game. West Georgia's only points came in the fourth quarter, on a 22 yard field goal. The Trojans added one more touchdown to make the final tally, TSU 38-WGC 3. The Trojan season began to go down hill after that. The Blazers of Valdosta State visited Memorial Stadium for TSU's next contest, and the Trojans jumped out early. On their first possession, the Trojans moved 67 yards in 13 plays, as Bob Godsey ran over for the TD. The two clubs swapped TDs and using an effective passing attack VSC took a 21-14 lead into its locker room. The Blazers allowed TSU a safety in the final period, ending the game with a 21-16 victory. It was the Trojans first conference loss in 20 games, and marked the first time since 1982 that the Blazers had defeated the Trojans. On Oct. 8, the Trojans traveled to Clinton, Mississippi to battle the Choctaws of Mississippi College. The Trojans, who owned a two-game win streak against the Choctaws, but this game belonged to

MC. The Choctaws took the 18-12 victory on the strength of TSU miscues. MC turned one TSU fumble into a touchdown, an interception into a field goal and notched a safety against the Trojans. The Trojans returned home with a 3-3 record and their backs up against the wall. If the Trojans hoped to make the playoffs, they could not lose another game. The game with Delta State was recognized as the kickoff for the American Textile Week in Alabama. It featured several thousand textile workers in attendance, sky diving before the game and fireworks at halftime. The Trojans had won 11 of the previous 12 meetings of the two schools before the Statesmen escaped with a 24-21 victory in Memorial Stadium. The Statesmen had an 0-3 conference record coming into the game, but the Trojans could not stop the DSU offense, allowing 378 yards total offense to the Mississippians. It was the first time since 1982 that the Trojans had dropped three straight. The struggling Trojans were looking for a little respect when they journeyed to Florence on Oct. 22. The Trojans faced the University of North Alabama where they pounded out a 30-7 victory. The Trojans took advantage of eight Lion turnovers in the University of Tennessee-Martin. The Pacers were tied for the conference lead after dusting off previously unbeaten Jacksonville State 31-24 on the preceeding weekend. Bad weather was a part of the season and this game was no different. After causing the lights to go out in game one, and causing a delay in the game against VSC, the rain hampered the spirits of the fans and made the playing surface a bit tricky. Dispite the weather, TSU struck first on 79 yard interception return by cornerback Doug Mims. TSU went up 17-3 in the second quarter with just under 9 minutes to go before the bottom fell out. UTM blasted back for three TDs in just over eight minutes to take a 24-17 advantage into halftime. The Trojans fought back, hitting two third quarter field goals which cut the Pacer lead to 24-23. They could manage nothing more, however, as UTM added a field goal and spoiled the Trojan Homecoming 27-23. The final contest of the season for the Trojans was the annual grudge match against Jacksonville State. The Trojans met the 7-1 Gamecocks in Jacksonville in a game that wasn't even close. The Gamecocks snapped TSU's five year dominance in the series by thrashing the Trojans 31-3. The Trojans wound up the season averaging 231.3 yards rushing pre game and 101.2 yards per game through the air. The Trojans scored an average of 21.5 points per game, while giving up 19.4 per game to the opposition.

Several TSU players were recognized for their outstanding performances, both on the field and off. Linebacker Gerrick Pimienta was named to the Associated Press Little All American second team and to the third team of "Don Hanson's National Weekly Gazette," a national football publication. Cornerback Doug Mims was named to "Southern Magazines" Academic All-South Football Team. The Dothan sophomore carried a 3.78 GPA.

Volleyball: A Smashing Success

If you could judge how well a season went by a win/lose record, the Lady Trojans Volleyball team had a spectacular season. They ended up with the best record in the history of Troy State Volleyball, 31 wins and 10 losses. Although they did not capture the conference title, they were pleased with their overall season. The Lady Trojans opened their season by winning their own Lady Trojans Invitational. As the season progressed, they had many great victories, such as winning the FAMU Invitational Tournament. The season ended abruptly after conference with the resignation of coach Ginger Sprague Lowe. Who will be greatly missed as will the graduating seniors, Natalie Wyrick, Jill Eastin, Jennie James.

The team captains were senior Jennie James and junior Dee Dee Taylor. The most valuable player was Pamela Carver. And the All Conference players from Troy State were Natalie Wyrick, April Goodwin, Pamela Carver.

Troy State Basketball Making History

Troy State began its 1988-89 basketball season with four of the team members returning who advanced to the NCAA Division II Final Four last season. In the Gulf South Conference pre-season polls, the Trojans were favored to win; but the Trojans ended the season in second place with a GSC league record of 11-5 and an overall record of 18-7.

The team's expectations for the 1988-89 season were high. The season opener was an exhibition game against the team from Ostersund, Sweden who were considered the top rebounding team in Sweden. The real season began with two wins against Savannah State and Southern Indiana. The next game used this loss to inspire them to work harder and the next five games rendered victories. The spirit of the Trojans were dampened by the loss of their first GSC game but bounced back to win eight consecutive GSC battles. Unfortunately the last two GSC games were lost putting the trojans into second place. The team played hard and ended the season with a record of 13-0 hometown victories. Also members of the team (Darryl Thomas and Anthony Reed) were chosen All-GSC basketball players with Darryl Thomas also capturing the Most Valuable Player award of the GSC.

Darryl Thomas, senior forward, ends his second year career making history at Troy State University. He is the first TSU player to be named to the NCAA Division II's All-American basketball team. For this honor his picture will be placed in the Tine Davis Field House Red Room. Darryl has had an outstanding career. In 1987-88 he recieved the MVP in the regional tournament in Virginia and made All-Tournament team in the Final Four. The past two years he has led the GSC in scoring averaging 23

Senior center, Calvin McDowell, scored 11.3 points and made 7.4 rebounds per game. Anthony Reed, junior forward, led the team with a 61.0 shooting percentage and with his 9.0 rebounds per game. Neil Murray averages 9.1 points per game and made 45 of 112 three-pointers. Matt Cope-land made 130 in 25 games. Starting off on the right foot posed a problem for the Lady Trojans in the 1989 season. Ankles, strained muscles, and broken fingers all interfered with the Trojans performance. "Many of the girls experienced injuries and that affected our playing ability," said Joyce Sorrell.

The final record for the Lady Trojans was 8-17. Nine of these losses were by a mere 3 point margin. "It was a disappointing season as far as record but we had young players and gained a lot of experience", stated Coach Sorrell. The team played many top competitors in the Gulf South Conference, one of which was Delta State who won the National Championship in the league. West Georgia and Jax State finished in the top 20 teams as well. The team being very young and having only two seniors, however, makes for a promising future.

The team was well rounded in talent, yet the key players in the Lady Trojans' season were Angie Lowe, Brenda Ghee and Amy Hisper. Angie Lowe of Gordon, Alabama averaged 16.4 points per game and led the team in scoring. She won the All Gulf South Conference for the second year in a row. Brenda Ghee, snatching 8.7 rebounds a game led the team as well. Amy Hisper, a fourth year senior acquired 105 assists. Other players were Gayla Howard, Angie Callans, Shirley Williams, Chandra McClain and Risa Green.

Take me out to the ball game!!!

The Troy State University baseball team entered the 1989 campaign with a lot of question marks. The team that had advanced to the South Central region tournament the year before was faced with the loss of the entire infield, the starting catcher and the starting centerfielder.

Head coach Chase Riddle also had a problem with pitching. The top three starters from 1988 were gone and the returning pitchers had little experience.

The Trojans were also hampered by injuries as the start of the season approached. Infielders Jorge Hernandez and Dirk Williams were sidelined early as was David Whitaker who figured to be a power hitter for the Trojans.

Despite all the question marks, the Trojans came out of the shoot ready. They swept a four game series from Ferris State to open the season and they compiled an 11-4 record going into their first conference game with West Georgia.

After splitting with the Braves, the Trojans were hammered by Jacksonville State in a doubleheader at JSU. The Trojan's 1-3 conference mark left them in the cellar of the GSC's Eastern Division.

The Trojans returned to form after splitting a home stand with Valdosta and sweeping West Georgia, those victories improved the Trojan's record to 21-10, returned the Trojans to second place in the east and set the stage for a critical doubleheader against Jacksonville State.

The Gamecocks came into Troy's Pace Field ranked fifth in the nation with a 24-7 record. Over 1200 fans watched as game one turned into a hitter's slug fest with the lead changing hands several times, before a late inning rally gave the Trojans an 11-10 victory. Game two saw fine pitching performances by both teams. The Trojan's five game winning streak came to an end as TSU lost 1-0 on a no-hit performance by JSU's Jim Denison. The Trojans were then faced with a crucial doubleheader at Valdosta State.

In that final weekend of conference play, JSU was atop the Eastern Division standings with a 7-3 mark with the Trojans occupying the second place slot at 5-5. WGC and Valdosta were pulling up the cellar with 3-5 marks, but before the weekend was over those standings would change. Valdosta ripped the Trojans in game one 11-2. The game was never in doubt as the Blazers scored eight times in the first inning. Game two was a tightly contested affair until the sixth inning. The Trojans fought to a 3-2 lead in the top half of the inning, before Valdosta exploded for seven runs in the bottom of the sixth to win 9-3. The losses sent the Trojans to the bottom of the Eastern Division standings. At the same time, West Georgia defeated Jacksonville to move into a second place tie with Valdosta.

The Trojans finished out the regular season with games against a couple of Montgomery colleges, ending their season with a 29-16 record. The Trojans were 19-8 at home and 7-7 on the road. They were 3-1 at neutral ballparks. They were 3-1 against Division I schools, 13-11 against Division II schools and 13-4 against NAIA opponents.

This marked the first time since 1982 that the Trojans did not make it to NCAA Regional Tournament play. The team's final ranking of 24th was the lowest since Chase Riddle took over the TSU program in 1979.

Shortstop Dirk Williams led the Trojans at the plate compiling a .410 batting average. Williams hit 11 doubles with 34 RBIs and 38 runs scored. Left fielder Scott Ates hit .344 on the season and Brain Dunn batted .340 with five home runs. First baseman Ross Jinright tied Dunn for the most round trippers with five.

TSU hit .311 as a team and had an impressive fielding percentage of .952. The team's earned run average was 5.03.

Marcus Hooland led the Trojans pitching staff with a 3-1 record and a 3.30 ERA.

PLAY BALL !!

Under the direction of new head coach Mickey Jacobs, the Troy State Women's Softball team is experiencing a year of reinforcing strong foundations. The Trojans started the year out with a strong showing at the West Georgia Invitational where they won three and lost four. The leading batter was Junior Dee Dee Taylor and in second was freshman Michelle Weston. Taylor also leads in home runs. The team faced many barriers with a new coach, limited pitching and many players who had never faced a fast pitch game. The competitive nature of the Gulf South Conference provided the Trojans with many surprises. Many of the players were placed in key positions that they had never played before. Michelle Weston, who had never played fast pitch, was faced with the challenge of playing catcher. The Trojans kicked off the season with Huntingdon College where they won 8-3 then lost 10-0. The Trojans then played Jacksonville State in which they lost both games 2-1 and 9-2. Dee Dee Taylor and Jenny Braswell both hit home runs against Jacksonville State. The team consisted of seniors Jeannie Braswell, Natalie Wyrick, Tracey Wright and Amanda Tucker; Juniors Dee Dee Taylor, Pam Goodwin, April Goodwin, Alice Johnson and Kelley Simpson, as well as Sophomore Erin Slattery and Freshmen Michelle Weston and Kelley Shotwell.

Tennis: Bouncing Back

The 1989 Troy State University men's tennis team ended its season in sixth place in the Gulf South Conference, Paxson is hopeful that next year will turn out better.

"Within the conference, we've been very competitive," said Paxson. "We've held up pretty well, with pretty close scores."

"Next season, we have a lot of people coming back, so we could be alot tougher," he said.

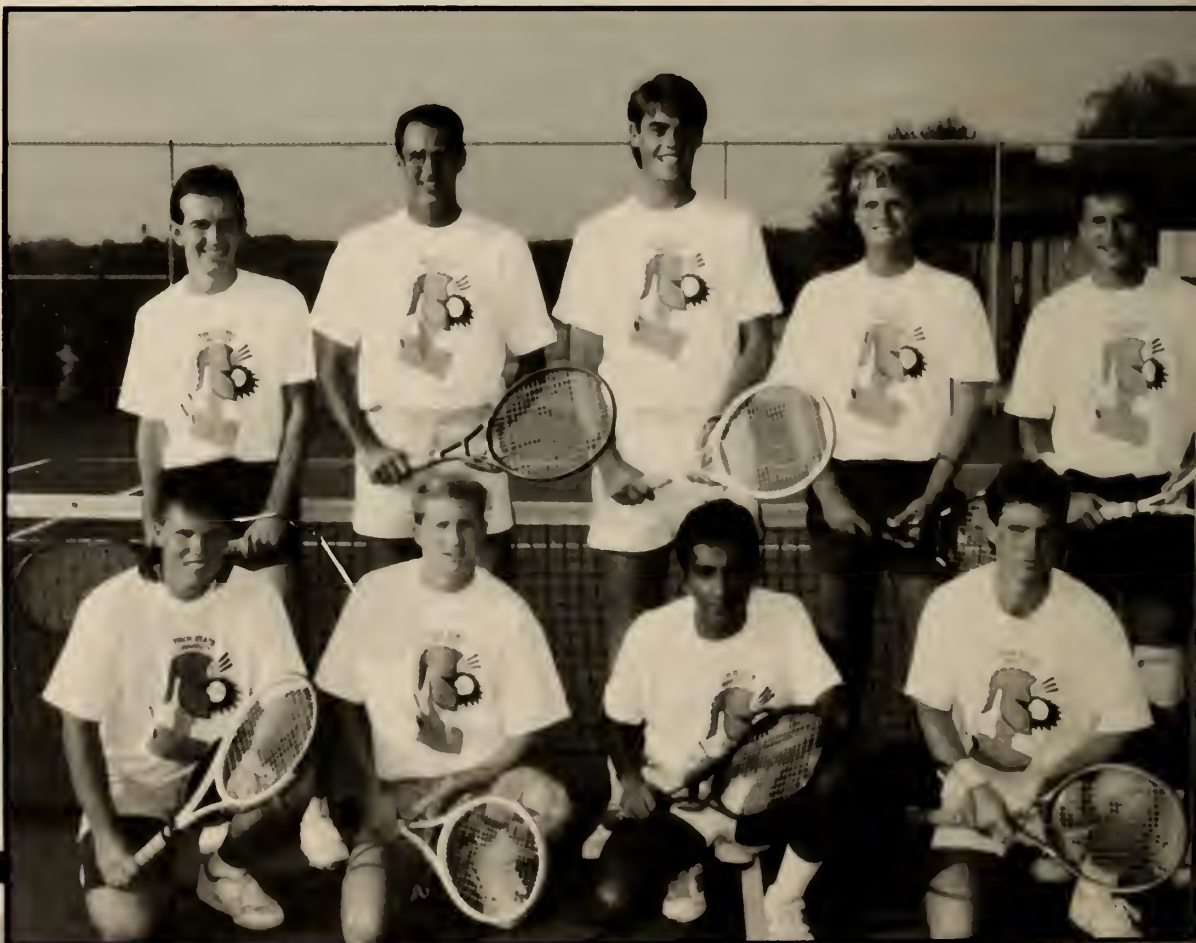

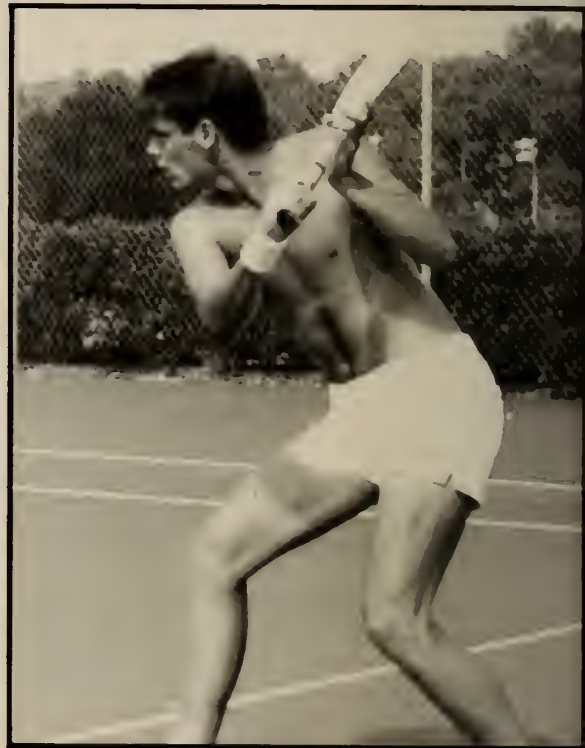

The returning players will include the teams top three performers of last season: Mark Rose, Einar Sigurgeirsson, and John Miller.

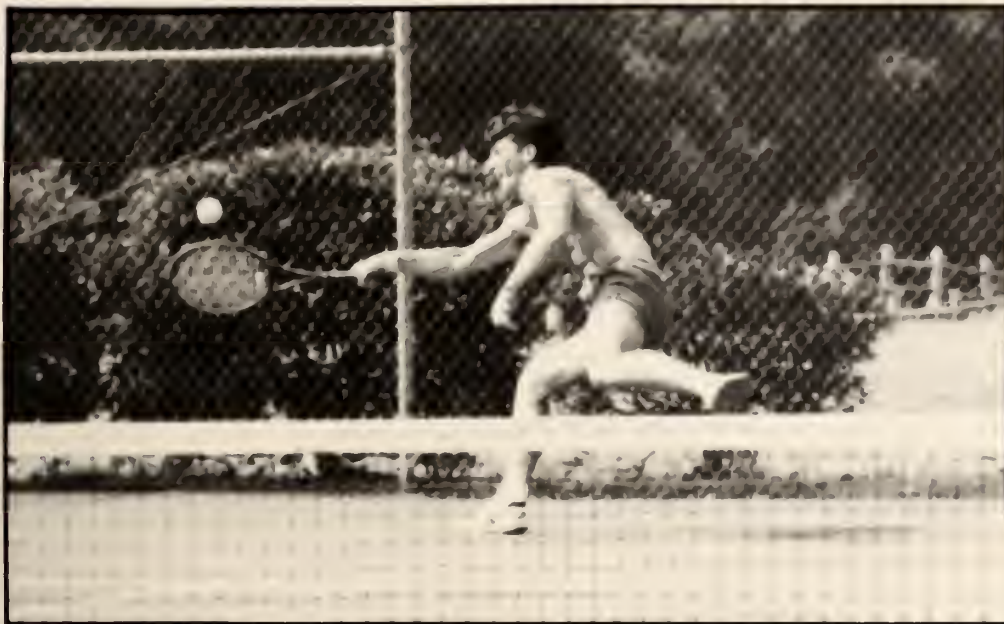

The Trojans Finished with an overall record of seven and eleven for the season.

The Troy State University Track Team has had an exceptional year. The team has placed well in all events. According to Rick Stetson Junior James and Bill Hibbard will have the best chance at qualifying for the national meet.

Coach Stetson expects the team to place in the top ten at nationals, which will be held in Hampton, Virginia May 25-27. An advantage for Troy State is that most of the team returned. Troy will begin looking to have all Americans on the Squad next season. This will show in the amount of the team wins for the Trojans in the next three years.

The cross-country team for the fall season was definitely strong and showed great promise.

A big change for the season was a new coach, Yul Provancha. Provancha gave new spirit to the team, coaching them to a third place finish in their first meet of the season. This streak continued with such wins at Dartmouth in October with a fourth place finish.

This upsweep in cross-country gave Troy State's track program the boost they needed to rebuild the Cross Country Program at Troy State University..

Fall Intramurals

The fall intramural season for 1988 was different from any other in Troy State's history. This year saw the birth of girl's flag football, billiards, and swimming. Another change this fall was that non-Greek organizations were allowed to compete in the games against the Greeks.

One of these non-Greek teams, the Bomb Squad, went all the way to the men's flag football rankings and was the overall winner for the season. The Kappa Deltas were the big winner in the women's flag football competition.

On the volleyball court, the team from Sigma Alpha Epsilon took the title for men while the Eliminators won in the women's league.

In the newly formed swimming competition, the Phi Mu won for the ladies as the aptly-named Sharks dominated in the men's games.

Changes in this fall's competition were welcome among Troy State's students. The new games were great spirit boosters and are sure to be standards for the years to come.

Cheerleaders

Our Trojan "messengers of spirit" are something that we are very proud of at TSU. They put in many long afternoons of practice in the support of the athletic program. Accompanied by the ever friendly Trojan mascot, T-ROY, they lead Trojan fans in giving our team the rip-roaring support they truly deserve.

TSU cheerleaders are chosen each Spring at tryouts. Seven men and seven ladies are selected to represent TSU as its "spirit chancellors". The elite, then work hard to be SPIRITAT ITS BEST, something we feel they have truly accomplished.

The Troy State Trojan golf team had an outstanding season this year. The Trojans, who are the nine-time defending GSC Champions, faced their stiffest test in recent years. "The divisional race is getting a lot tighter," said team captain Mike Morton, a four-year starter.

"We're going to have to really play good this year," he added. "There are four or five teams that have a good shot at winning it (as opposed to one or two teams in recent years), but if we play up to our potential we should win."

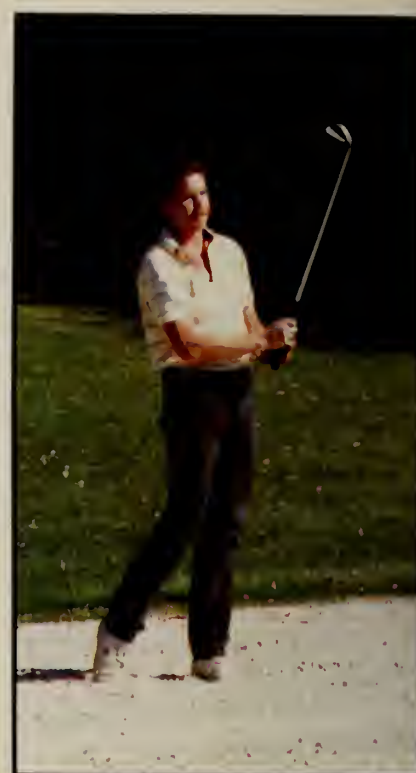

The golfers participated in the following tournaments: Wynlakes, Southeast Louisiana Invitational, Southern Junior-Senior, Southeastern Collegiate, Tampa Invitational and in the Gulf South Conference Championship. They won the Tampa Invitational and were a runner-up in the Southeast Louisiana Invitational and the Southeastern Collegiate. In other tournaments the Trojans placed third and seventh.

The Troy State University golf team has seven team members qualifying to go to the Gulf South Conference during the year. The seven team members are Mike Wright, Joe Shahady, Mike Morton, Preston Wilson, Brad Champion, Jeff Goodman and Barry Alexander. Only five team members will be able to compete. During the 87-88 year, Mike Wright, Mike Morton, Brad Champion, Robbie Cotton and Jim Gottschall led Troy State University to victory in the Gulf South Conference Championships.

From there the Trojans participated in the Lady Tiger Invitational at Memphis State University October 2-4, 1988. Again T.S.U. was the only Div. II school in the tournament. The team finished their Fall season off with the Tiger-Tide Invitational sponsored by the University of Alabama and Auburn University at the Seascape Resort in Destin, FL. T.S.U. finished 12th out of 18 and was the only Div. II school competing. Troy State kicked their Spring season off with the Hudson Industries Invitational March 3-5 at the Country Club of Alabama in Eufaula, AL. From there it was the Louisiana State University Invitational in Baton Rouge, March 17-19. Then the team competed in the Gulf Shores Invitational April 14-16. Freshman standout Kelli Sanders from Montgomery, AL. scored 75, 76, 80 and finished in the top ten players of the tournament. The team will finish the season with the National Championship Tournament in Fayetteville, NC. The Lady Trojans ended the year ranked No. 1 in the nation.

Administration

Thanks, Dr. and Mrs. Adams! was the theme of the year in which to remember the accomplishments and growth that was headed by the retiring Chancellor and his beloved wife, Dorothy. The years of the Adams' administration brought with it many changes; the most important of these was the expanding of Troy State College into the Troy State University System. This expansion took a small teachers' college and turned it into a world wide university system with campuses located in the United States, Western Europe and, as of this year, in the Pacific Region.

Chancellor Ralph Adams in just 26 years has redefined the meaning of lasting impressions.

RALPH WYATT ADAMS

CHANCELLOR

July 1, 1985, Dr. Ralph W. Adams was named Chancellor of the Troy State University System by the Board of Trustees. Dr. Adams has served as President of Troy since October 1, 1964. At the time, Troy State was a small state-supported institution with barely 2,000 students; now the TSU system has 13,577 students attending classes on campuses located in Alabama, Arkansas, Cuba, Europe, Florida, and Georgia.

In academics alone, when Dr. Adams became President, Troy State was offering its students an opportunity to earn degrees in only four areas of study. Today, it is possible to earn degrees in forty-eight areas of study.

In education circles, he is known as an innovator. His "University Without Walls" concept of taking education to the people has been envied and emulated throughout the nation.

A native of Samson, Alabama, Dr. Adams holds earned degrees from Birmingham-Southern and the University of Alabama. He also did post-graduate work at Princeton, Harvard, and Oxford University in Europe.

He was elected to the Alabama Academy of Honor in 1977 and designated the first Citizen of the Area by the Chamber of Commerce in 1979.

Dr. Adams married the former Dorothy Kelly in September 1942. Mrs. Adams received her B.A. degree from Troy State University in 1971. Mrs. Adams is an Honorary Miss TSU. Both Dr. and Mrs. Adams are members of Phi Kappa Phi, Omicron Delta Kappa and Mortar Board.

Chancellor and Mrs. Adams have three children: Ralph Wyatt Jr., Kelly Clements (Mrs. James B. Allen, Jr.) and Samuel.

Impressions Of A Lifetime

Dr. Adams and George Wallace pose in front of Dr. Adams's boarding house, in which they grew to become very close friends.

Humble. Unassuming. Quiet. These are some of the words that have been used to describe Ralph Adams. On first meeting him, a new acquaintance may be surprised at his warm humility, and his slight frame. Are you sure this is the man who has literally transformed a small teachers' college into the state's third largest university system in the last twenty-five years?

But he has done this, forging ahead with the motive of improving higher education and placing this little university on the proverbial map. And he has done so with uncanny panache and incredible class.

Even in his youth, Ralph Adams exhibited untiring industry. He worked in the school dairy at Lyman Ward to pay his expenses. At Birmingham-Southern, he sold magazine subscriptions to fund his education. Then as a law student at Alabama, he bought a house for $1500 and turned it into a boarding house for fellow students. In this enterprise, he met George Wallace, and through him, Dorothy Kelly, who later became his wife. Adams and Wallace practiced law together; Adams became a judge in Tuscaloosa county, and then entered the Air Force. Through his experience in the service, including his positions as professor and dean at the Air University Law School, Adams gained knowledge of and interest in the educative process.

Dr. Adams thanks Governor Guy Hunt on being the guest speaker for the Centennial Commencement Exercises.

His enduring friendship with George Wallace eventually afforded him experience with state governmental affairs, as Wallace appointed him to a cabinet position in his first administration.

Such is the makeup of this man, the dean of college and university presidents in Alabama. He is a composite of a disciplined military man, well-read educator, experienced politician, analytic attorney and judge, accomplished administrator, loving father, devoted husband, and ever the student among students. He loves to eat lunch at the Country Kitchen and drink cane juice in the fall. Early in the morning, surrounded by sections of The Wall Street Journal scattered on the floor of his new office in the building that bears his name, with a cup of coffee, he insists on pouring himself, there in the midst of all the Chippendale furniture framed by a bay-window view of the awakening campus, is a study in contrast.

In his first report to the Alabama Legislature after Troy State was named a university, Dr. Adams said, "the university has no needs in and of itself—the needs of Troy State University are the needs of the people it serves." He went on to declare that Troy State was committed to excellence, for "... to render less than the optimum to any one segment of the university is to reduce the totality of learning.

Having been President for 25 years of Troy State's 100 year existence, Dr. Adams proudly displays his own centennial edition liscence plate.

Dr. Adams poses with Wallace Malone, Ronald Reagan and Jeremiah Denton at a reception in Montgomery, Alabama.

Were those statements made more than 20 years ago the products of Ralph Adams' dreams, or were they a prelude to a well-planned, calculated effort on the part of a shrewd businessman?

Conscientious Adams-watchers will probably conjecture that it's a bit of both. Look at the campus in 1964: Troy State College. Most of the 1,600 students were education majors. A few business majors here and there. No remedial programs, no tutors. One admissions counselor. A football team no one outside of Troy had ever heard of. Was there a band? Temporary housing in a muddy field behind Bibb Graves Hall. A one-room student center. No on-campus apartments, no fraternities. One honor society. Look now: for lack of space, here suffice it to say that Troy State offers its students every amenity of its larger sister schools, without the throngs of people clamoring to use them.

At the eve of his announced retirement, Dr. Adams is the oldest college president/chancellor in Alabama, both in terms of age and in length of service. Why has he lasted so long? To pose this question to the Chancellor himself will no doubt yield a humorous answer.

Our Dr. Adams has every right and reason to express his pride. He is successful in his personal life as well as in his professional life. He is the chief executive officer of a public institution with forty locations and service to more than 14,000 people, including students and staff. His name is on scholarships, brochures, and even on the lips of those who emulate him.

Mrs. Dorothy Adams has been by Dr. Adams' side, ever the supportive wife, through all of these years. She has added to the college community by being a gracious hostess, opening their home to the students and townspeople on numerous occasions. Any time she could sing the praises of TSU, she has been the most effective spokeswoman. For years she taught in the English department and has been retired (if you can call it that) for several years. She can be found, busy as can be, doing all the things people do in their retirement, plus volunteer work, visiting and caring for sick friends, and still talking about the virtues of Troy State.

What will Troy State do without Ralph Wyatt Adams, its guide and mentor for a quarter century, and his active wife, Dorothy? This question is tantamount in the minds of those who will remain in the new administration. But those who have known Dr. Adams over the years have known that he has surrounded himself with absorbing, innovative minds, for, in his words, "a great university is a collection of great minds." Perhaps some of those great minds will carry on the tradition of excellence for which Ralph Adams has been purveyor and chief advocate.

School of Education

Dr. James D. Kimbrough,
Dean

The School of Education is organized into four departments: education, psychology, health and physical education (HPER), and human services.

A regional In-Service Education Center, located in McCartha Hall, became a part of the School of Education in 1985. Its purpose is to provide in-service education for twenty-two school systems in southeast Alabama.

The current faculty is best prepared in the history of the School of Education. All nineteen faculty members in the Departments of Education and Psychology hold doctoral degrees from a total of fourteen universities throughout the United States. The Department of Health and Physical Education has added several faculty members with doctorates during the past three years.

The Department of Education offers undergraduate and graduate programs in early childhood, elementary, special, and secondary/ N-12 education. A non-traditional fifth-year program in education was implemented in September, 1985, for persons holding non-education baccalaureate degrees. Teacher education programs offered on the Troy campus are accredited by the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education, Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, and the Alabama State Department of Education.

The Department of Psychology offers an undergraduate major and minor in psychology and double majors in psychology and marketing and psychology and management.

In addition to its teacher education programs, the Department of Health and Physical Education offers non-teaching degrees in health and physical education. The Department of Human Services offers undergraduate degrees in rehabilitation, human services, and social work. National accreditation is being pursued for the social work program. The Department of Human Services, through a contractual agreement with the Department of Youth Services, operates a Group Home for Girls in Troy.

Hall School of Journalism

Mr. Merrill Bankester
Dean

This fall saw the largest number of incoming freshmen in the history of the School of Journalism. Added to this three new faculty members gives reason for a bright outlook.

All three of these faculty members bring a strong professional background to the program.

Arnette Adcock, who taught on a part-time basis last year, became a full-time instructor this fall. Mrs. Adcock had her own public relations business prior to joining the staff. Her primary teaching area is the public relations courses.

Bob Fordan, who joined the faculty this past summer, had experience in the television and radio industry in addition to teaching at the college level. He is heading the broadcast sequence.

Gordon McKerral, who is heading up the print journalism sequence, is getting his first taste of teaching on the college level. He has 10 years in the newspaper business including being a part owner of a newspaper in Indiana.

Soon to be put into operation is a radio lab which will allow students in the broadcast program to train for the radio field. An on-campus television station provides these students the opportunity to sharpen their skills in an on-the-job type situation. For several years, broadcast journalism students have been producing an evening news show on WTSU-TV very similar to that of area professional stations. With the opening of the radio lab, the school will become one of the best equipped broadcast programs in the nation.

The print program installed a new type setting system with a laser print three years ago. All students in the program must learn to operate the system for classroom work. The system is also used by students to produce the campus newspaper.

In order to provide students with more than a classroom look at the field of journalism, two student organizations have been established on campus. The society of Professional Journalists is a nationwide umbrella organization for both professional journalists and students majoring in journalism. Alpha Epsilon Rho is a national organization for students majoring in broadcast journalism.

Hall School of Journalism: Dean Merrill Bankester, Arnette Adcock, Gordon McKerral and Bob Fordan.

Sorrell College of Business

Dr. Lawrence Lovick
Acting Dean

The programs offered by the Sorrell College of Business are designed to develop the skills and leadership qualities needed to succeed in the business community of the free enterprise system. Its major and minor degree offerings teach the technical competencies and attitudes of mind necessary to better understand and successfully cope with the rapidly changing domestic and international world of business, industry, and government. To facilitate these objectives, a faculty of highly qualified men and women bring to the classroom diversified academic and business experience backgrounds.

The college now offers two tracks for the student to pursue. The first is in the business administration program, which includes majors in accounting, economics, finance, general business, management, marketing, and office systems. These majors require the study of quantitative methods, management information systems, basic economics and accounting, business law, finance, marketing, management, production, communication and organizational and policy analysis.

Dr. Edward T. Merkel
Assistant Dean

The second track encompasses the study of computer and information science. The student pursues a course regimen of computer languages, programming, and data base systems. The program emphasizes a "hands-on" approach with the utilization of personal computers. In conjunction with computer studies, the student also pursues an academic concentration in either accounting or business administration or a major or double minor of his choosing.

The College of Business also allows the student to pursue other avenues of study. The business education major can be obtained by those interested in teaching business courses on the high school level. An economics major can be obtained by the student preferring a social science emphasis. Minors in business administration, economics and computer information science are also available.

School of Fine Arts

Dr. John Long
Dean

The School of Fine Arts at Troy State University is dedicated to the concept that every person needs the opportunity to experience the arts and culture of our existence. It firmly believes this search for intellectual, emotional and aesthetic satisfaction can help develop objectives and meaning for life.

Created in 1971, the School of Fine Arts encompasses the disciplines of drama, speech, and the visual arts. Through a curriculum which encourages performance, but recognizes the need for a thorough background in history and theory, students can pursue an avocational experience or prepare for a career in the arts. These opportunities are guided to fruition through the dedicated efforts of faculty artists concerned with the total educational experience.

A wide variety of cultural events are presented by the School throughout the academic year. These include student and faculty exhibits in the visual arts, gridiron performances by the "Sound of the South" marching band, concerts by the Jazz band, Symphony band, Collegiate Singers, and Madrigals, operas and musicals performed by the Opera Workshop, student and faculty recitals, intercollegiate debate competitions, children's theatre presented by the Pied Pipers and a broad spectrum of dramatic productions.

Graduate School

Dr. Rudi Argenti
Dean

The first graduate degree earned at Troy State University was conferred in 1958. In 1958, the mission of the graduate program was to prepare students in Teacher Education and to meet the needs of the elementary and secondary schools. The degree of Masters of Science Education was offered in several areas of professional education.

Early in the 1970's, the need for knowledge and advanced education in specialized and professional fields required the University to add several new Master's programs in arts and sciences, business, counseling, and human development and criminal justice. Several professional degree programs were added. In 1972, Educational Specialist Degrees were added in Counseling and Human Development and in Administration and Supervision for those students working the Master's level. In 1981, the Educational Specialist Degree was expanded to include early childhood, elementary, and secondary education. The School of Nursing initiated its Master's Degree Program in 1982.

Members of this year's graduate school committee include the following: Dr. Anthony Adcock, Dr. Debra Davis, Dr. William Denison, Dr. Rufus Hughes, Mr. Lawrence Mowery, Dr. Robert Pullen, Dr. Curtis Porter, Dr. Edward Merkel, Dr. G. T. Stewart, Dr. John Whitehouse, Dr. Andrew Cox, Dr. Magdalend Wojciechowska, and student member Tina Lockett.

In order to meet the growing complexity and need of a diverse student body, the Graduate School currently offers fourteen Master's and five educational specialist degrees. The Graduate School as the administrative unit is concerned with all aspects of graduate education. Its primary responsibilities are the maintenance and enhancement of graduate programs within the TSU System. The graduate program is administered by the dean in cooperation with the undergraduate deans. Policies and regulations which govern graduate studies are formulated by the Graduate Council.

College of Special Programs

Dr. James D. Young
Dean

The College of Special Programs was organized August 1, 1981, to administer the off-campus programs. It is comprised of four directorates: Applied Sciences, Continuing Education, and Education Services. During the 1987-88 school year, the College of Special Programs has seen an increasing interest in noncredit courses. Eighteen new courses were offered for community service on the main campus. However, the largest task of the College is the administration of the Off-Campus Branches of TSU at Phenix City; Ft. Benning, and Moody Air Force Base, Georgia, and the Florida Region Incorporated and the thirty U.S. military locations in Europe.

In the Fall of 1987 there were approximately 5,000 students enrolled in over 7,000 courses with the College of Special Programs. These students are usually older than the main campus students and most have full-time occupations, outside of school. Their classes are usually held at night and other off-duty hours. The most common academic programs are Business Administration, Management, Applied Science, International Relations, Personal Management, Criminal Justice, Counseling and Human Development.

Mrs. Barbara M. David
Director

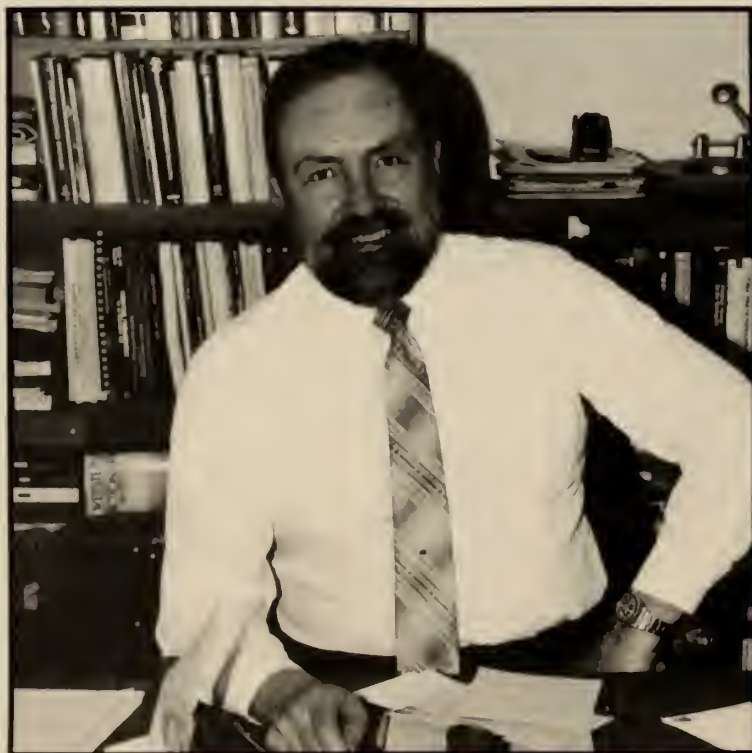

The Troy State University European campus is composed of sixteen mini-campuses in four countries: two in Italy, three in Turkey, four in England and seven in West Germany. Since its conception in August of 1974, the European Division with 14 courses at eight US Air Force installations and an initial enrollment of 221, has grown to 52 courses at 16 bases and an enrollment of 687; the actual student body has grown from 177 to 430 students.

Individuals with a Bachelor's Degree from an accredited university are eligible for programs, which grant Masters of Science, Degrees in Management, International Relations and Counseling and Guidance. Enrolling in two courses per term can enable the individual to have his degree in fourteen months, without having to write a thesis. This especially provides the serviceman with an opportunity to broaden his education and even earn his Master's while stationed in Europe.

TSU in Cuba

In 1988, Troy State University responded to a HQ Navy request that we provide upper division and graduate programs at Guantanamo Bay Cuba. "Gitmo" is a remote, hardship tour area for the Navy and Marine Corps. It is the only American enclave in a hostile, communist country. Nearly 10,000 U.S. Military Civilian employees and their dependents are surrounded by Castro's Cuban military forces. They are a completely self-contained community manufacturing their own fresh water supply from the Gulf of Mexico, create their own electrical power, and supplied by sea and air from the U.S. The military felt it was extremely important to offer their isolated population a quality off-duty education program so they turned to Troy State University. We have been so successful that today the Navy is negotiating with TSU as the only source to offer all undergraduate and graduate programs.

The motto, "The sun shall never set on the Troy State Campus" was made true when the U.S. Military contracted with the university to offer graduate education programs for the next five years in Hawaii, Japan, Okinawa, and Korea. Today, with a staff of nearly ten, and a faculty of six, TSU is providing quality education program opportunities throughout the Pacific to tens of thousands of U.S. military, civilian employees, and their dependents. Today hundreds of students are attending this far flung operation with hopes of fulfilling their goals of improving their military performance or entering the education profession. The Pacific Region with emergence of Korea and Japan should prove a fruitful area for future growth and Troy State is there.

TSU — Eaker AFB

Eaker Air Force Base is located in North Eastern Arkansas. It is a SAC Base with world-wide bomber and air refueling missions, that serve our national security interests. The base itself has about 5,000 military, civilian employees, and their dependents. In September, 1988, Troy State University responded to a request from Eaker Air Force Base in Blytheville, Arkansas to establish a graduate program. Today our twenty students are attending TSU's classes leading to a master of public administration degree. TSU is providing intensive week-end format and evening course work to the installation's population.

Mrs. Deborah Peoples, TSU coordinator, stands in front of the sign for the grand opening for Eaker AFB, Blytheville, Arkansas.

Florida Region, Inc.

Troy State University System, Florida Region, Inc., is dedicated to meeting the needs of military and civilian personnel in Northwest Florida. It had its great beginnings in 1973 at Hurlburt Field and later included Eglin Air Force Base, both of which are near Fort Walton Beach, FL. Since then it has expanded its areas of operation to encompass NAS Pensacola, Cory Station, and NAS Whiting Field in the Pensacola, FL. area

The Florida Region offers baccalaureate degrees in Applied Sciences, Business Administration, Computer Science, Criminal Justice, Psychology, and Social Sciences.

Masters of Science degrees are being offered in Counseling and Human Development, International Relations, Management and Public Relations.

The curriculum and format of course scheduling provide for flexible adaptability to the military and civilian working and student's duty or work requirements without compromising academic quality.

TSU at Dothan/Ft. Rucker

Troy State University at Dothan/Ft. Rucker traces its origin to the Troy State Normal School.

In the late 1950's, in response to the need of the military at Ft. Rucker, Troy State began offering courses at the post and in 1961, a resident center was established at Ft. Rucker. In 1967 the branch on the military base was named Troy State University at Fort Rucker. By the mid 1970's, TSU at Ft. Rucker had outgrown its facilities available at Ft. Rucker.

Wallace State Community

College in Dothan offered the use of its classrooms and in 1974 Troy State University began offering classes in Dothan. The campus at Dothan is located near the heart of the downtown area in an eight-story building, Houston Hall.

The campus in Fort Rucker finds itself lodged in classroom space, which is provided by the military in several modern instructional buildings, administrative space and library space is provided through the University.

TSU in Montgomery

In 1955 at the invitation of the U.S. Army, Troy State University established an extension center at Fort Rucker. Ten years later the Air Force invited Troy State to establish a similar program at Maxwell Air Force Base. Troy State has been offering programs to Montgerians since 1957 and to military personnel since 1965.

In Montgomery, Troy State offers the following degree granting programs: Associates, Bachelors, Masters and Education Specialist. Eighteen undergraduate programs are offered as well as a variety of graduate programs with majors in criminal justice, counseling, computer science, personnel management and business administration. Several telecourses—education via home television—are offered each quarter.

From its small beginning the student body has grown to over 2700 students. In 1983, Troy State University in Montgomery was independently accredited by the Commissions of Colleges of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

Closing

The impressions of a year cannot be summed up in any equation, statement or even in this book. It is the accumulation of each individual's personal thoughts, feelings and visions. Every person forms a lasting impression of himself and the world around him. To be naive enough to believe that this book contains everyone's interpretation of his experiences during college would be ludicrous. However, it is our intent and desire to have at least captured some of the lasting impressions that have made your college experience memorable.

Student Publications Board

The University Student Publications Board (USPB) serves as a policy setting board whose chief responsibility is to exercise supervision over the Tropolitan, Palladium, and any other University Publication the Chancellor of the University places under the boards jurisdiction.

The USPB assures the publication's freedom from censorship and the editor of those publications the right to develop their own editorial policies and news coverage. The USPB serves as a management board. The board selects, employs, and terminates the editors and business managers of the Tropolitan, Palladium and any other publication placed under its jurisdiction. Similarly, the Board supports those editors and managers against arbitray suspension and removal because of student, faculty, administrative or public disapproval of editorial policy or content.

The Palladium Staff

The idea of completing 416 pages in 150 working days is a concept many would consider impossible. However, for the Palladium Staff, it is just another year's work. Add to that little feat, the hours spent in classes, studying, and a active social life; you have the average Palladium Staff member. It is not an easy task to create a pictorial history of the Troy State University System but for those that chose to work on the Palladium Staff it is a immense labor of love.

The year started, as always, with complete strangers coming together with no concept of what was ahead of them. During the year, we meet the struggle of: good grades in accounting, bad tempers at deadline, computers from hell, and the never ending struggle to become more mature individuals. By the end of the year, it was as if we had been together all our lives and the task of completing another issue of the Palladium was finished.

It is hard to define the dedication it takes to be a member of the Palladium staff in one word, but if you had to, it would be "wholehearted."

Editor's Note

The end is here!! It is with sweet sorrow that I write this last page. I have worked on this publication for the last four years and as editor for the last two. It was also the forth year for my associate editor Lori Featheringill. Together we have meet the challenges of putting together this publication and we are both glad it is finally over. However, I know that we have had some good times and I will miss not seeing her as often as I do now. I wish she and her new husband Jonathan Scott the very best. I just hope he can put up with her.

I have to say that the job of editor is not easy, but I had a good staff and each is a good friend. Jennifer Sohn, who served as my business manager and secretary was a pain in the *& . She also leaves this year to marry Doug Weeks and transfers to Florida State University. I hope that success will follow them. Lisa Palmisano, who is my fraternity little sis and the staffs newest associate editor, is crazy enough to stay for another year. I must thank "Cheese" for being a creative and wonderful friend. She has always had all her deadlines in on deadline. (what a concept!!!!) I also must thank Beth Weatherford for all the help she gave us in writing the campus life copy and Bert Kelly for his help with the Sports copy. Last but not least a special thank you goes to the staff: Mandy, Amy, Lori D., Kyle, Heath, Dean, Michelle, and Lisa H.

My greatest impression of TSU will always be the faith that Jaqualine Smith and Dr. Donald Gibson placed in me when I first asked for this job. I simply hope that I came through on my part.

It is not easy putting this book together and not many people would want the job, but for a few it is fun to meet the challanges of a new day. Next year, the Palladium will be the responsibility of Vince Stansbury. He is capable of doing a good job but he must remember that the staff is the arms and he is the mind. (What a Scarrrry thought!?)

My lasting impressions of TSU are many. The years have flown by so fast and now it is time to start my life outside of these glass walls. I feel that the years at TSU have prepared me the best that anywhere else could have. Now the challage of tommorrow is mine and mine alone to meet. I have learned that I am a realist with the hope of becomeing a idealist, maybe that is the greatest lesson of all.

Sincerely,

Garry Wayne Cannon
